Raskob's New Issues in Congressional Campaign

ADVOCATES A FIVE-DAY WEEK FOR ALL PERSONS

ALL HOLIDAYS EXCEPT CHRISTMAS TO BE ON MONDAYS, FOR 3-DAY WEEK-END

A NATIONAL REFERENDUM ON PROHIBITION, REMOVAL OF TARIFF FROM POLITICS

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Oct. 28.—New issues have been thrust into the congressional election just one week away by John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee.

In a radio address last night, the democratic national chairman outlined a broad political program including the following:

1. A five-day week for all.
 2. All holidays except possibly Christmas to be on Mondays in order to give a three-day week-end.
 3. Enforcement of liquor excise taxes against bootleg liquor and a national referendum on prohibition. He estimated that $900,000,000 would have been collected on the basis of $76,000,000 gallons of illicit liquor produced last year according to government estimates and that this sum could be cut off of income taxes, releasing that much purchasing power.
 4. Power to the federal trade commission to grant immunity from criminal prosecution to mergers not inimical to public interest nor in conflict with the spirit of anti-trust laws.
 5. Abolition of the capital gain and loss taxes to encourage investment of capital in speculative enterprises.
 6. Removal of the tariff from politics by creation of a bi-partisan tariff commission, appointed for life, surrounded with dignity like that of the U. S. supreme court, empowered to make recommendations to congress which could not consider any amendments except those germane to items concerned.
- Raskob declared everything has been thoroughly deflated, that business is now turning upward and that soon we all shall be singing "Happy Days Are Here Again."
- Emerging with this program from the background where he has remained since the defeat of former Governor Smith two years ago, Raskob has taken the lead in the final days of the democratic campaign.
- Republicans are expected to seize upon this development to concentrate their fire on Raskob, knowing that some sections of his own party are strongly opposed to his anti-prohibition views and to his control of the democratic national committee.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 28.—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York charged the republican administration last night with winning the last national election through deliberate misrepresentation.

Smith spoke at a democratic rally here before some 15,000 persons. Part of his address was broadcast on a national hookup over the Columbia broadcasting system.

Smith declared he did not lay responsibility for the unemployment crisis and business depression upon Pres. Hoover and his administration, but held the republican party culpable for prosperity promises unkept—promises, he said, which the party knew could not be kept.

The former presidential candidate assailed the republicans on three counts—deliberate deceit in promises of continued prosperity, refusal to face the unemployment situation frankly, and failure to provide relief.

He presented the following program for improvement of conditions:

1. Economy in government through elimination of appropriations for purely political purposes.
2. A five-day working week.
3. Child labor regulation.
4. Passage of the bill of Senator Wagner of New York for unemployment relief.
5. Amendment of the republican tariff law.

WILLIAM J. QUINN FOUND AT HOSPITAL

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 28.—(UP)—William J. Quinn, missing attorney and former state democratic chairman, was located today at the Bethesda hospital undergoing treatment for a severe cold. Mrs. Quinn said she had asked her husband to obtain medical attention but said she did not know until last night that he had entered the hospital.

BISHOP CANNON IS IN HOSPITAL

Washington, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church south, was a patient at Sibley hospital today, having entered the institution last Saturday for a period of "rest and quiet." Dr. Roy L. Sexton, Cannon's physician, said no one would be permitted to see the bishop.

FINGER PRINTING BUSINESS HAS GONE TO DOGS

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 28.—(UP)—This finger printing business has gone to the dogs.

L. J. Essex, private detective and dog fancier, has set up a dog identification bureau that depends largely for its success on the whorls and contours of each dog's nose.

Every animal is as distinctive in this respect as are men in their finger prints, according to Essex who has already built up an extensive file of "nose prints" with the nose markings of the subjects on one side of a card and on the other a "case history."

THINK GIRL WAS DRUGGED BEFORE DEATH IN FIRE

MARIE MCCARTHY, PRETTY 17-YEAR-OLD WISCONSIN ART STUDENT IN MYSTERY

AUTOPSY TO BE HELD, GIRL LOST LIFE IN ROADHOUSE FIRE

Madison, Wis., Oct. 28.—(UP)—Marie McCarthy, pretty 17-year-old Wisconsin university art student, may have been drugged before she was burned to death in a roadhouse fire Friday night, state and city authorities said today in announcing arrangement for an autopsy.

District Attorney Fred Riser said that the girl's father, Joseph McCarthy, a Madison druggist, had withdrawn his objections to the autopsy when he learned of the circumstances surrounding his daughter's death.

Lyman Schley, proprietor of the roadhouse, told police that he believed the fire may have been started by enemies. Schley took Miss McCarthy to the roadhouse Friday night and revealed they were secretly in love.

"I was running the roadhouse to obtain enough money to go to college," Schley said. "I intended entering Wisconsin university in February. Marie and I had been meeting secretly for a year and a half. Our parents objected because of religious differences."

District Attorney Riser subpoenaed several witnesses today, some of them said to have been companions of Schley and Miss McCarthy Friday night.

TWO BANK BANDIT SUSPECTS ARRESTED BY PINE CITY POSSES

Pine City, Minn., Oct. 28.—(UP)—The Webster bandits by Byron Selvers, of criminal apprehension arrived today to view two suspects arrested by posses after the hold up of the Burnett County State Bank at Webster, Wis.

Police said the men, Leonard McCarthy and Joseph Miller, both of Milwaukee, yesterday were identified as the Webster bandits by Byron Selvers, president of the bank.

Minnesota operatives wished to check the activities of the men in hopes of linking them with some recent Minnesota bank robberies.

Wisconsin authorities said they would ask extradition of the pair.

CARLETON COLLEGE STUDENT DIES OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Northfield, Minn., Oct. 28.—(UP)—Carleton college students were forbidden to leave the city today after one student died of infantile paralysis and two other cases were reported.

The student who died was Robert Mason, Chicago. Classes continued as usual on the campus and there was no quarantine on dormitories.

Carleton authorities requested use of the new University of Minnesota mechanical lung was loaded on a truck at Minneapolis and brought here today.

Dr. E. C. Rosenow, Mayo clinic, Rochester, specialist in the treatment of infantile paralysis, was in charge of the cases of the two students.

The students were Harry Green, White Bear, Minn., and Evelyn Thompson, Cresco, Iowa. Green had only a light case.

No new cases have developed since Sunday, college authorities said, and it was thought that the spread of the disease had been checked.

Two cases of infantile paralysis had been reported in Northfield before any students were infected.

Report 200 Japanese Police and Soldiers Killed in Rioting on the Island of Formosa

30 JAPANESE FAMILIES HAVE BEEN MASSACRED

MILITARY AIRPLANES AND INFANTRY SENT TO SCENES OF RIOTING

1,500 MOUNTAINEERS REPORTED MENACING THE TOWN OF HORI

London, Oct. 28.—(UP)—An Exchange Telegram dispatch from Tokio today reported 200 Japanese police and civilians had been killed in rioting on the Island of Formosa.

Tokio, Oct. 28.—Many villagers and native police on the island of Formosa were feared massacred by rioting mountain head hunters in the province of Taishu today.

Reports to the war office said that police stations had been attacked. Several policemen were reported killed and it was feared that 30 Japanese families had been massacred in the village of Musha, near Hori.

Military airplanes and infantry were sent to the scene of the rioting. Fifteen hundred mountaineers were reported menacing the town of Hori. Communications were cut off and it was feared that all police stations in the town had been captured.

The rioters seized rifles and munitions from the police.

The cause of the disorders was obscure, but they were believed due to reports that the natives would be forced from their homes by the erection of a power station on the island. It was considered likely that the natives would be attacked from the air.

EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY OF FASCIST MARCH ON ROME CELEBRATED

Rohe, Oct. 28.—(UP)—The eighth anniversary of the fascist march on Rome and the installation of the fascist regime was celebrated throughout Italy today.

Premier Benito Mussolini was rousing acclamation when he reviewed a military parade at Piazza di Siena. Roman militia, including a legion formed exclusively of war cripples, marched before him.

Public works totalling 2,338 projects were inaugurated in various sections of the country. Patriotic speeches, fascist parades, and cinema programs illustrating the progress of the regime were also on the program.

The celebration ushered in year IX of the fascist era, and all official documents will now bear this date besides that of the year 1930.

Thousands of uniformed black shirts came to Rome for the anniversary. The streets of the city were decorated with a long waving line of tri-color.

PRESIDENT HOOVER ASKS FOR A FAIR MINDED ATTITUDE

Washington, Oct. 28.—(UP)—The faith of the American people in highminded public officials has been damaged by charges against their integrity, President Hoover declared in a statement today, appealing for a fair attitude toward those in the public service.

Mr. Hoover referred particularly to the publication of charges by Ralph S. Kelley, former employee of the land office, concerning disposition by the interior department of Colorado oil shale lands.

MRS. McMORMICK REPORTS ON HER ELECTION EXPENSES

Washington, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, republican candidate for the senate in Illinois, reported to the senate today that her election campaign expenditures to date amount to about $16,000 exclusive of the cost of "shadowing" chairman Nye of the senate campaign expenditures committee.

She said she was not reporting this expenditure because it was not required by law.

Earlier testimony before the Nye committee revealed expenditures of nearly $350,000 in Mrs. McCormick's primary campaign.

FIVE BANDITS ROB BANK OF $5,000

Lancaster, Ohio, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Five bandits held up the Fairfield National Bank today, slugged two officials and a customer, and escaped with between $5,000 and $8,000.

BORAH HOPES SCHALL WILL BE RE-ELECTED

St. Paul, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Senator William E. Borah, Idaho, who had been invited to speak at the republican rally dinner tomorrow night today wired that he could not attend.

Borah urged the re-election of Senator Thomas D. Schall in his telegram of regret.

"In the coming struggle for the interest of the west and the rights and interests of the people, Senator Schall will be needed in Washington. I hope Minnesota will return her faithful and able public servant," Borah said.

CLIMAXES NIGHT OF REVELRY BY SHOOTING HIMSELF

BRUCE TODD, SON OF KAY TODD, ST. PAUL, SHOTS HIMSELF IN RIGHT TEMPLE

POLICE, UNABLE TO ESTABLISH MOTIVE, QUESTION COMPANION IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Bruce Todd, 30, son of Kay Todd, St. Paul insurance official, climaxed a night of celebrating at the Gayety club by shooting himself in the right temple early today. He was taken to Passavant hospital in a critical condition.

Police, unable to establish a motive, questioned H. E. Carney, Jr., of Minneapolis, who said he was a friend. Carney said he met Todd while they were attending the Shattuck military school at Fairbault, Minn., 10 years ago.

Todd was a rover, Carney said, who sought excitement in foreign lands, but had accepted a position with his father's insurance firm. Carney said he had not been with Todd during the night.

Attendants at the night club said Todd sat around the place, until closing time. Asked to leave, he went to a washroom and sent a porter for headache powders. When the porter returned, Todd had shot himself. At the hotel where Todd was registered, it was found he had been there since October 22.

CHIVALROUS BANDITS REVIVE YOUNG WOMAN

Minneapolis, Oct. 28.—(UP)—A pair of chivalrous bandits today revived a young woman who fainted during their holdup of the Rafter Baking Co. of $500.

As they left the building after reviving Ruth Swenson, phone operator, who fainted from nervousness during the robbery, they passed John J. Rafter, owner of the concern.

Rafter had just arrived and did not know of the holdup.

"Good morning," they said pleasantly and walked out to the car in which they made their escape.

CHICAGO STARTS ITS RELIEF OF UNEMPLOYMENT

CAMPAIGN TO FILL EMPTY CUPBOARDS AND YAWNING COAL BINS

DRIVE LAUNCHED TO RAISE SUM OF $1,000,000 CASH

Chicago, Oct. 28.—(UP)—The campaign to relieve Chicago's unemployed and fill empty cupboards and coal bins took definite form today when George F. Getz, chairman of Illinois' unemployment relief commission, announced the launching of a drive to raise $1,000,000.

The campaign, in the form of a community chest fund, will be started with pleas to wealthy citizens for substantial donations. Getz, wealthy coal dealer and co-promoter of the last Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship prize fight, said:

"To start with," Getz said, "capitalists, bankers, executives and big business men will be called upon to donate sums of from $1,000 to $25,000."

"Probably within two weeks, the campaign will be extended to include the selling of 'community chests' but, perhaps for a dollar each. Minute men will be assigned to make speeches in theatres calling upon Chicago citizens to give a portion of their salaries to this fund," he said.

"Business enterprises, taxis, theatres are to contribute a percentage of their income on designated days. Fraternal, social, athletic and other organizations will give entertainments, the proceeds to be turned over to the chest fund."

Getz explained that money obtained in the drive would be turned over to charity organizations who in turn would distribute it where most needed.

MRS. McCORMICK MAKES CHARGES AGAINST THOMPSON

Chicago, Oct. 28.—(UP)—The charge that Mayor William Hale Thompson is using the police department to threaten gangsters who won't "go along" with James Hamilton Lewis, democratic candidate for senator, was made by Mrs. McCormick, Lewis' republican opponent, today.

Mrs. McCormick added the new attack on Mayor Thompson to the assaults on him with which she has enlivened her rallies since the mayor's endorsement of Lewis.

Mrs. McCormick told her audience that "Bill Thompson is still using the police in his desperate effort to defeat me."

"In some of the wards," she continued, "policemen in uniform are being sent out from police stations to warn gang leaders that they must work for Lewis."

'Early to Bed and Early to Rise' Not Always Sound Advice

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 28.—(UP)—Poor Richard's adage about "early to bed and early to rise" rhymes nicely, but it isn't necessarily sound advice, according to the conclusions of doctors attending the annual convention of the American Public Health association.

"A man may keep any hours he likes so long as he gets a full eight hours of sleep out of every 24, the physicians believe."

"Most folks require eight hours of sleep every night, but if they turn in late one night, there's no reason why they should turn out early the next morning," said Dr. P. W. Covington, of Salt Lake City.

RANSOM MAY BE RAISED FOR EARL L. YOCUM

SECRET ARRANGEMENTS WERE BELIEVED BEING MADE TO PAY $50,000

MILLIONAIRE GALVA, ILL., BANKER HELD CAPTIVE BY KIDNAPER GANG

Galva, Ill., Oct. 28.—(UP)—Secret arrangements were believed being made today to pay ransom, said to be $50,000, for release of Earl L. Yocum, millionaire Galva banker who was held captive by a gang of kidnapers. An air of mystery surrounded the disappearance and even officials did not pretend to know just how or when the ransom would be paid or the banker returned to his home.

It was known, however, that Yocum's wife had received mysterious letters and it was believed certain she was arranging to pay the ransom as she expressed confidence her husband was safe and that he would return home soon.

"I am not going to take a single chance that he may be harmed," Mrs. Yocum told friends after refusing to be interviewed by Sheriff Charles Nash.

"I know that my husband will return unharmed and that is all that matters," she said.

Yocum was kidnapped from his own estate last Saturday night as he returned home after taking his daughters, Mary, 13, and Anna, 8, to a moving picture theatre.

A motorist called to him and asked to be directed to a neighbor's home. Mrs. Yocum, sitting inside the house, overheard the conversation. Her husband, she said, agreed to show the man the way. That was the last seen or heard of him.

Becoming worried over his absence, Mrs. Yocum attempted to telephone to neighbors about an hour later. The telephone wires had been cut outside the house. Poses were formed and a search started. A letter was received Sunday by Mrs. Yocum. Another arrived Monday. She refused to divulge the contents of either, refused also to talk to officials and the searching parties were called in.

The authorities, including Sheriff Nash and Chief of Police Tate Aman, were resigned today to the idea of leaving the matter entirely in the hands of Mrs. Yocum and considered the kidnapping a closed incident insofar as any official investigation was concerned.

The shooting followed the robbery of the Harrison State Bank last night by three men. Between $1,500 and $2,000 was obtained by the trio.

A posse of officers and volunteers from Harrison, Whitehall and Virginia City, home of the historic vigilantes, searched the hills for a trio of bandits one of whom was believed to be wounded.

The bandits succeeded in escaping from the Harrison State Bank with the loot, although a posse which was informed and guarded all doors.

In the confusion that followed the looting of the safe, opened by Bleck at gun point, the men escaped from the officers, although one man believed to have participated in the robbery was taken shortly afterward.

The suspect gave the name of Ralph Harrington, and was held on an open charge at the Harrison jail today.

Sam Young, president of the bank and prominent merchant, looked on while officers made frantic preparations to capture the robbers and protect the institution's funds. It was Young who opened the safe after the bandits had departed and released Bleck, who had been locked in the vault.

TERRIFIC BLAST WRECKS MINE AT McALESTER

CURLEY DONLEY, OF SHIFT OF 29 MEN, WAS KILLED INSTANTLY

BODIES OF 4 OTHERS WERE RECOVERED SHORTLY AFTER 6 A. M.

McAlester, Okla., Oct. 28.—(UP)—Working in relays and protected by cumbersome gas masks, volunteer rescue crews dug their way, foot by foot, today into the Samples Coal Mine No. 4 where 24 miners, all but five of a recently established night shift, were entombed.

Curley Donley, one member of the shift of 29 men, was killed instantly by a terrific blast that wrecked the mine late last night and was heard at McAlester, a mile and a half away. The bodies of four other men were recovered shortly after 6 A. M. They were brought to the surface from the 16th level of the slope pit mine, a depth of 2,000 feet. No attempt was made to identify them.

Rescue workers said the victims were found huddled together and died from poisonous gas.

Other victims were believed on the 17th to the 20th levels, well under the city of McAlester.

"The only hope that any of the other men is alive is that they have found a pocket of fresh air and slipped into it," said J. G. Paterbaugh, president of a McAlester fuel company, a veteran miner and a leader in the rescue work.

"The chances for saving them are almost nil," he added.

Donley was near the mine entrance when the explosion, believed caused by accumulated gas in the shaft, occurred. His work was to drive the coal cars in and out of the mine and he had just returned from a trip to the 2,500 foot level. He was killed instantly. His body was recovered.

The shock of the explosion was felt distinctly in McAlester and within a few minutes after it occurred roads were filled with running men, women and children. Among them were relatives of the miners who had lived in constant fear of just such a disaster and who knew instinctively what had happened the moment they heard the blast.

Scenes of wild confusion ensued about the mine entrance. Screaming women and children were driven back by hurriedly formed squads of pickets. The rescue crews were formed rapidly, gas masks procured and the work of digging away the debris began.

Shortly before 11 o'clock, rescue operations were brought to a virtual standstill when dense clouds of black dust rolled up from the pit, penetrating as far as the 14th level.

"The fumes are making the men ill," J. Paterbaugh, leader of the rescue crew, said. "It is doubtful whether we can reach the 24 trapped men before 6 P. M. Every human effort is being made to remove them."

Somewhere below the wall of deadly gas, in shafts cluttered with debris the fate of the entombed men was sealed. The crowd at the mine had grown to 2,000 persons, almost the entire population of McAlester.

Rushville, Ill., Oct. 28.—One miner was killed and two others were injured seriously when buried beneath a slide of earth in a strip mine near here yesterday.

The body of Roy Pribett, 44, was recovered from under eight feet of earth.

CALIFORNIA GRAPE JUICE TO BE SOLD IN MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 28.—(UP)—Druggists of Milwaukee have arranged to take orders for California grape juice which will ferment if exposed to the air, officials of the Milwaukee Pharmaceutical association announced today.

A California fruit company will fill the orders taken by the druggists and ship the grape juice direct to the consumers, it was said.

W. Frank Cunningham, deputy prohibition administrator for this district, said that in the opinion of the federal enforcement department the plan is a "test case."

"The juice will be unfarmed when it leaves the company's hands," said J. J. Posselt, a member of the pharmaceutical association board of directors. "It is prepared in such a fashion, however, that merely allowing air to enter the containers will cause it to become wine."

C. D. Johnston, St. Paul Political Writer, Injured

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 28.—(UP)—C. D. Johnston, political writer for the St. Paul Pioneer Press-Dispatch, was in serious condition at Ancker hospital today after an automobile crash.

Johnston was returning from a political meeting when his car crashed into a safety island.

He suffered a compound fracture of the left leg, contusions about the head, possible internal injuries and severe bruises.

St. Paul, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Senator William E. Borah, Idaho, who had been invited to speak at the republican rally dinner tomorrow night today wired that he could not attend.

Borah urged the re-election of Senator Thomas D. Schall in his telegram of regret.

"In the coming struggle for the interest of the west and the rights and interests of the people, Senator Schall will be needed in Washington. I hope Minnesota will return her faithful and able public servant," Borah said.

CLIMAXES NIGHT OF REVELRY BY SHOOTING HIMSELF

BRUCE TODD, SON OF KAY TODD, ST. PAUL, SHOOTS HIMSELF IN RIGHT TEMPLE

POLICE, UNABLE TO ESTABLISH MOTIVE, QUESTION COMPANION IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Bruce Todd, 30, son of Kay Todd, St. Paul insurance official, climaxed a night of revelry at the Gayety club by shooting himself in the right temple early today. He was taken to Passavant hospital in a critical condition.

Police, unable to establish a motive, questioned H. E. Carney, Jr., of Mankato, Minn., who said he was a friend. Carney said he met Todd while they were attending the Shattuck military school at Faribault, Minn., 10 years ago.

Todd was a rover, Carney said, who sought excitement in foreign lands, but had accepted a position with his father's insurance firm. Carney said he had not been with Todd during the night.

Attendants at the night club said Todd sat around the place, until closing time. Asked to leave, he went to a washroom and sent a porter for headache powders. When the porter returned, Todd had shot himself.

At the hotel where Todd was registered, it was found he had been there since October 22.

CHIVALROUS BANDITS REVIVE YOUNG WOMAN

Minneapolis, Oct. 28.—(UP)—A pair of chivalrous bandits today revived a young woman who fainted during their holdup of the Rafter Baking Co. of $500.

As they left the building after reviving Ruth Swenson, phone operator, who fainted from nervousness during the robbery, they passed John J. Rafter, owner of the concern.

Rafter had just arrived and did not know of the holdup.

"Good morning," they said pleasantly and walked out to the car in which they made their escape.

CHICAGO STARTS ITS RELIEF OF UNEMPLOYMENT

CAMPAIGN TO FILL EMPTY COAL BINS

DRIVE LAUNCHED TO RAISE SUM OF $1,600,000 CASH

Chicago, Oct. 28.—(UP)—The campaign to relieve Chicago's unemployed and fill empty cupboards and coal bins took definite form today when George F. Getz, chairman of Illinois' unemployment relief commission, announced the launching of a drive to raise $1,600,000.

The campaign, in the form of a community chest fund, will be started with pleas to wealthy citizens for substantial donations. Getz, wealthy coal dealer and co-promoter of the last Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship prize fight, said:

"To start with," Getz said, "capitalists, bankers, executives and big business men will be called upon to donate sums of from $1,000 to $25,000."

"Probably within two weeks, the campaign will be extended to include the selling of 'community chests' buttons, perhaps for a dollar each. Minutemen will be assigned to make speeches in theatres calling upon Chicago citizens to give a portion of their salaries to this fund," he said.

"Business enterprises, taxis, theatres are to contribute a percentage of their income on designated days. Fraternal, social, athletic and other organizations will give entertainments, the proceeds to be turned over to the chest fund."

Getz explained that money obtained in the drive would be turned over to charity organizations who in turn would distribute it where most needed.

MRS. McCORMICK MAKES CHARGES AGAINST THOMPSON

Chicago, Oct. 28.—(UP)—The charge that Mayor William Hale Thompson is using the police department to threaten gangsters who won't "go along" with James Hamilton Lewis, democratic candidate for senator, was made by Mrs. McCormick, Lewis' republican opponent, today.

Mrs. McCormick added the new attack on Mayor Thompson to the assaults on him with which she has endeavored her rallies since the mayor's endorsement of Lewis.

Mrs. McCormick told her audience that "Bill Thompson is still using the police in his desperate effort to defeat me."

"In some of the wards," she continued, "police in uniform are being sent out from police stations to warn gang leaders that they must work for Lewis."

Gift Baby's' Return Demanded

Baby Lillian Jean, above, is too young to realize what the "big fuss over her" is about. Her mother, Mrs. Aline Alexander (inset), seeks writ of habeas corpus in battle to regain custody of her little daughter. Her fight is directed against Dr. Courtland R. Sanborn, Oakland, California, physician, and his wife, Annetta, to whom she is alleged to have given her baby daughter, following a chance meeting on a downtown street.

TERRIFIC BLAST WRECKS MINE AT McALESTER

CURLEY DONLEY, OF SHIFT OF 29 MEN, WAS KILLED INSTANTLY

BODIES OF 4 OTHERS WERE RECOVERED SHORTLY AFTER

McAlester, Okla., Oct. 28.—(UP)—Working in relays and protected by cumbersome gas masks, volunteer rescue crews dug their way, foot by foot, today into the Samples Coal Mine No. 4 where 24 miners, all but five of a recently established night shift, were entombed.

Curley Donley, one member of the shift of 29 men, was killed instantly by a terrific blast that wrecked the mine late last night and was heard at McAlester, a mile and a half away. The bodies of four other men were recovered shortly after 6 A. M. They were brought to the surface from the 16th level of the slope pit mine, a depth of 2,000 feet. No attempt was made to identify them.

Rescue workers said the victims were found huddled together and died from poisonous gas.

Other victims were believed on the 17th to the 20th levels, well under the city of McAlester.

"The only hope that any of the other men is alive is that they have found a pocket of fresh air and slipped into it," said J. G. Futerbaugh, president of a McAlester fuel company, a veteran miner and a leader in the rescue work.

"The chances for saving them are almost nil," he added.

Donley was near the mine entrance when the explosion, believed caused by accumulated gas in the shaft, occurred. His work was to drive the coal cars in and out of the mine and he had just returned from a trip to the 2,500 foot level. He was killed instantly. His body was recovered.

The shock of the explosion was felt distinctly in McAlester and within a few minutes after it occurred roads were filled with running men, women and children. Among them were relatives of the miners who had lived in constant fear of just such a disaster and who knew instinctively what had happened the moment they heard the blast.

Scenes of wild confusion ensued about the mine entrance. Screaming women and children were driven back by hurriedly formed squads of pickets. The rescue crews were formed rapidly, gas masks procured and the work of digging away the debris began.

Shortly before 11 o'clock, rescue operations were brought to a virtual standstill when dense clouds of black damp rolled up from the pit, penetrating as far as the 14th level.

"The fumes are making the men ill," J. Futerbaugh, leader of the rescue crew, said. "It is doubtful whether we can reach the 24 trapped men before 6 P. M. Every human effort is being made to remove them."

Somewhere below the wall of deadly gas, in shafts cluttered with debris the fate of the entombed men was sealed.

The crowd at the mine had grown to 2,000 persons, almost the entire population of McAlester.

Rushville, Ill., Oct. 28.—One miner was killed and two others were injured seriously when buried beneath a slide of earth in a strip mine near here yesterday.

The body of Roy Pribett, 44, was recovered from under eight feet of earth.

CALIFORNIA GRAPE JUICE TO BE SOLD IN MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 28.—(UP)—Druggists of Milwaukee have arranged to take orders for California grape juice which will ferment if exposed to the air, officials of the Milwaukee Pharmaceutical association announced today.

A California fruit company will fill the orders taken by the druggists and ship the grape juice direct to the consumers, it was said.

W. Frank Cunningham, deputy prohibition administrator for this district, said that in the opinion of the federal enforcement department the plan is a "test case."

"The juice will be unfarmed when it leaves the company's hands," said J. J. Possehl, a member of the pharmaceutical association board of directors. "It is prepared in such a fashion, however, that merely allowing air to enter the containers will cause it to become wine."

C. D. Johnston, St. Paul Political Writer, Injured

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 28.—(UP)—C. D. Johnston, political writer for the St. Paul Pioneer Press-Dispatch, was in serious condition at Ancker hospital today after an automobile crash.

Johnston was returning from a political meeting when his car crashed into a safety island.

He suffered a compound fracture of the left leg, contusions about the head, possible internal injuries and severe bruises.

BRAINERD 25 Years Ago D

October 28, 1905

The members of the Black Hawks club celebrated the event of the reopening of their club rooms last night by giving a progressive 500 party.

Fifty candidates will be initiated into the local lodge A. O. U. W. tonight. Grand Master Workman John Larson of St. Paul arrived today and with the assistance of Grand Guide J. T. Sanborn of Brainerd, will probably have charge of the work. This is the largest class ever initiated at one time.

E. H. Constock of Minneapolis, senator from what is known as the university district was in Brainerd today visiting. He was here as early as 1870 and had charge of the logging up river for one of the big firms in Minneapolis. When he first came to Brainerd there was but one small shack.

Supt. J. A. Long of the Northland Pine company announces that the coming winter will be one of the busiest in many years in the logging district. They will employ 1,500 men in the Cross Lake country. Five hundred more have already gone in and 1,000 more will soon be engaged.

A fire at 5:30 o'clock this morning razed to the ground the Justin M. Gray livery stable on Laurel and Fifth street, entailing a loss of about $5,000. There were about a dozen horses in the stable and all were taken out, but one ran back in again and was consumed.

Methodist Ladies Aid

The M. E. ladies aid will meet at the church parlors on Wednesday afternoon, October 23, at 2:30 o'clock. All are urged to attend as the circles are now starting and each one will want to know what they are in.

BRAINERD'S ODDEST STORY OF TODAY

The boys of scout troop No. 43, Brainerd, tell this story on Joseph Schmitt, assistant regional scout executive.

Engrossed in telling camp fire stories to the troop at Long Lake last Saturday, the executive did not notice a bull frog hop into his cup of coffee. He drained the cup, apparently with relish, the boys say. Later the frog was discovered, but alas it had been scorched to death by the hot liquid.

Held on Charge of Scalding Stepson

Mrs. Minnie Stull, 30, of Princeton, W. Va., is being held for the Grand Jury, following accusations of her fatherless stepson, Mickey, 8, on his deathbed, that she dipped him into a tub of scalding water. Mrs. Stull denies this, saying the boy slipped into the tub when she was scrubbing the floor.

RACKETEERING MAY HAVE ENTERED FIELD OF MINIATURE GOLF

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Racketeering may have entered the field of miniature golf in the Metropolis, and police today dealt with what may be the first golf racket killing.

Joseph Feuerman, 40, was the apparent victim of what police suggested may have been racketeers' attempts to "muscle in" on the golf business. He was shot while near his golf course in the Bronx and authorities thought a man who had been riding with him shortly before might know something of the killing.

He had been fired upon at close range.

After the ceremony a three course wedding dinner was served at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Brusseau, with covers laid for fifteen. Decorations were in pink and white. Following the dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Brusseau left immediately on a short wedding trip to the Twin Cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Brusseau will make their future home in Brainerd and will be at home to their friends after November 1. They will make their home on a farm.

Mr. Brusseau is a graduate of the Brainerd schools and is well known in the city. The bride has been employed here for the past couple of years.

Young People's League of Brainerd, Pequot in Joint Meeting

Last Friday evening the Young People's league of the Zion Evangelical church of Northeast Brainerd motored to Pequot where a joint meeting with the league of the Evangelical church of that city was held.

Games were played, and a lunch served, followed by a fellowship meeting. In order to get acquainted with the neighboring league, the game "Who's Your Neighbor?" was played. Fifty-two in all were gathered for the joint meeting.

Miss Stearns Entertains at Hallowe'en Party

Miss Beatrice Stearns entertained last evening at a Hallowe'en party at her home, 434 Third avenue, Northeast, for the employees of the Scott store.

As the guests arrived, they were met by a ghost at the door, and ushered into the rooms which had been decorated in a Hallowe'en motif, with pumpkins, lanterns, streamers, etc. The evening was delightfully spent in fortune telling, tricks, games and music. At midnight a Hallowe'en luncheon was served, covers laid for twenty-four. Favors for the guests were horns and cats, also cleverly improvised hats.

BERNADINE TROENDLE

Leading violinist with the Range Symphony Orchestra, to appear here under the auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary Band and the Brainerd Musical club, backed by a large group of business and professional men. The Symphony appearance will take place in the local high school auditorium Sunday afternoon, November 9, at 3:30 o'clock.

Miss Troendle is a gifted violinist, highly appreciated wherever she has appeared; and is just as efficient in her solo work as she is in her capacity of first violinist in the Symphony Orchestra. She is an honor graduate of the Chicago Musical College under the great violin master Samatini.

BRAINERD 25 Years Ago

October 28, 1905

The members of the Black Hawks club celebrated the event of the reopening of their club rooms last night by giving a progressive 500 party.

Fifty candidates will be initiated into the local lodge A. O. U. W. tonight. Grand Master Workman John Larson, of St. Paul arrived today and with the assistance of Grand Guide J. T. Sanborn of Brainerd, will probably have charge of the work. This is the largest class ever initiated at one time.

E. H. Comstock of Minneapolis, senator from what is known as the university district was in Brainerd today visiting. He was here as early as 1870 and had charge of the logging up river, for one of the big firms in Minneapolis. When he first came to Brainerd there was but one small shack.

Supt. J. A. Long of the Northland Pine company announces that the coming winter will be one of the busiest in many years in the logging district. They will employ 1,500 men in the Cross Lake country. Five hundred have already gone in and 1,000 more will soon be engaged.

A fire at 5:30 o'clock this morning razed to the ground the Justin M. Gray livery stable on Laurel and Fifth street, entailing a loss of about $5,000. There were about a dozen horses in the stable and all were taken out, but one ran back in again and was consumed.

Methodist Ladies Aid

The M. E. ladies aid will meet at the church parlors on Wednesday afternoon, October 29, at 2:30 o'clock. All are urged to attend as the circles are now starting and each one will want to know what they are in.

The new dishes have arrived also and all members will wish to see them. The hostesses are Mrs. Ed Anderson and Mrs. Mark Cochran.

League to Meet at Farm Home

Tomorrow evening the Young People's League of the Zion Evangelical church of Northeast Brainerd will meet with Kenneth and Delbert Clawson at the farm home of their parents on 13th street. All those who wish to go are requested to meet at the church at 7:30 o'clock where transportation will be provided.

Dinner at Lake Cottage

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hoffbauer entertained a number of the employees of the Dispatch office at a dinner at their cottage on Round Lake last evening. Covers were laid for eight.

De Molays to Celebrate Hallowe'en with Dance at Iron Exchange Hall

One of the outstanding social events for the fall season of the Roosevelt Chapter of De Molays will be their Hallowe'en dance to be given Thursday evening, October 30, at the Iron Exchange hall.

The "Gateway Favorites" have been engaged to furnish music for the dance, which is for all DeMolays and their friends.

The hall will be decorated with a Hallowe'en color scheme.

BRAINERD'S ODDEST STORY OF TODAY

The boys of scout troop No. 43, Brainerd, tell this story on Joseph Schmitt, assistant regional scout executive.

Engrossed in telling camp fire stories to the troop at Long Lake last Saturday, the executive did not notice a bull frog hop into his cup of coffee. He drained the cup, apparently with relish, the boys say. Later the frog was discovered, but alas, it had been scorched to death by the hot liquid.

Held on Charge of Scalding Stepson

Mrs. Minnie Stull, 30, of Princeton, W. Va., is being held for the Grand Jury, following accusations of her fatherless stepson, Mickey, 8, on his deathbed, that she dipped him into a tub of scalding water. Mrs. Stull denies this, saying the boy slipped into the tub when she was scrubbing the floor.

RACKETEERING MAY HAVE ENTERED FIELD OF MINIATURE GOLF

New York, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Racketeering may have entered the field of miniature golf in the Metropolis, and police today dealt with what may be the first golf racket killing.

Joseph Feuerman, 40, was the apparent victim of what police suggested may have been racketeers attempts to "muscle in" on the golf business. He was shot while near his golf course in the Bronx and authorities thought a man who had been riding with him shortly before might know something of the killing.

He had been fired upon at close range.

SETTLE DOWN TO MAKE CLEAN-UP DRIVES IN CITIES

4 OF 5 MAJOR CANDIDATES SO
ENGAGED IN STATE'S FALL
ELECTION

ERNEST LUNDEEN IN FLYING SWING THROUGH NINTH DISTRICT

St. Paul, Oct. 28.—(U.P.)—Four of five major candidates in Minnesota's fall election today settled down to make clean-up drives in the Twin Cities.

The fifth, Ernest Lundeen, farmer-labor candidate for senator, today continued a flying swing through the ninth congressional district and will return tomorrow to wind up his campaign on the same ground as his opponents.

Ray P. Chase, republican gubernatorial nominee, will spend today and tomorrow in St. Paul and end the campaign with three days in Minneapolis. Monday he will go to Stillwater for a final speech before election day.

Headquarters of Floyd B. Olson, farmer-labor governor candidate, announced that Olson would spend the rest of his time between the two cities. He had spent several days in St. Paul already.

Einar Hoidale, democratic senatorial candidate, and Senator Thomas D. Schall, his republican opponent, continued their drive for support in Minneapolis.

Campaign managers of both candidates were predicting victory. Hoidale supporters pointed to the democratic candidate's lead in numerous polls taken through the Twin Cities while Schall adherents cited the "normal" republican majority and expressed assurance that it would bring in Schall the winner.

While candidates themselves intensified their activities in Minneapolis and St. Paul, numerous party leaders have been sent to rural districts and smaller cities to hold local meetings. Others are making daily radio talks.

STAGE IS SET FOR NATIONAL APPLE WEEK

Apples, apples and even more apples were pouring into Brainerd today preparatory to meeting the huge demand of local consumers for National Apple Week which begins Friday and lasts until Nov. 6.

A visit by a Daily Dispatch reporter to the Brainerd Fruit Company and the Nash-Finch Company, Brainerd fruit wholesalers revealed carloads of apples—literally mountains of apples. And through the courtesy of the Brainerd Fruit company the employees of the Dispatch were given samples of these tasty apples just arrived from Washington.

Advices from the orchard districts state that the crop of Washington Jonathans this year is one of the finest that has been produced in many seasons. The bright red color of these apples makes them attractive additions to the Halloween festivities and their rich, sprightly flavor has won them general favor for eating or cooking.

For a number of years Washington orchardists have packed their apples for shipment in "standard" apple boxes, a convenient package for family use. Apples are rigidly graded and carefully sized so that purchasers can tell exactly how many apples each box contains.

In recognition of the National Apple Week, many of the local dealers are featuring apples specially this week and this fruit is being served at a number of public functions as well as enjoyed in almost every home.

Navigation and the Up-River Towns

UNDER the heading, "Navigation and the Up-River Towns," the Minneapolis Tribune on Sunday referred to possible improvements of the Upper Mississippi river, as follows:

Quite probably business and civic groups bidden to a hearing at St. Cloud last week to give their views on improving the Mississippi river above Minneapolis and St. Paul were taken by surprise. It has been a long time since any serious thought has been devoted to river improvements above the Twin Cities.

Yet that possibility was realized years ago by federal engineers, and time was when light craft went as far up the river as Grand Rapids. Probably the legitimate head of navigation on the Mississippi is located about Brainerd, yet it is doubtful if Brainerd has ever seriously considered itself in that light.

With the fact being demonstrated that the rivers have a future in transportation developments Minnesota's up-river towns may begin to consider its possible effect on their future. With a comprehensive river improvement program there is little reason why coal from Illinois and iron ore from the Cuyuna range should not meet at Brainerd and be combined in the process of steel making, or why the processed lignites from Montana and North Dakota should not be transported to steel mills at Brainerd to be used in manufacturing steel.

There is no reason why automobiles should not be manufactured at St. Cloud, or Elk River, or Minneapolis, together with heavy types of farm machinery, and put on the market to the northwest farmers at savings in manufacturing cost which would be considerable, plus the saving in freight rates. It is quite possible that in the up-river country from the Twin Cities there will be some day a considerable industrial district, improving the local markets for products of the farm, increasing northwest prosperity and building up an inland empire far transcending the present in wealth.

In all the up-river towns a quarter of a century ago there were men who saw this possibility. They were never able to devise or finance a plan by which coking coal and iron ore could be brought together in Minnesota on a basis practical for manufacturing, but they believed it quite possible and declared the day would come. Current developments seem to indicate that it is coming. Whether it is coming before the great iron ore measures are exhausted is still a question. Yet it is apparently assured that the processes for coking lignite will soon reach the point where that horn of the dilemma is solved. Preliminary to this development is the improvement of the upper reaches of the Mississippi. It is a project having great possibilities as the first step in the ultimate development of an industrial district that may some day be as great as those in eastern centers built up by the transportation of iron ore to coking coal.

The Vacant Chair

A HUMAN life went out the other day—yes, 220 of them—the other day and every day of the year—all the result of accidents most of which might have been prevented, says the National Safety Council. And so, at the end of each year we mark up a total of more than 95,000 killed in accidents.

A human life went out the other day and with it went out Opportunity, Success and Happiness. They called it an "accident," and someone remarked, "It's God's Will."

But was it? Shall God be charged with the careless acts of men who take their own and others' lives? How long shall humans be permitted to destroy life and excuse themselves with the word "accident"?

How soon will we stop saying, "It is God's will," and demand investigation that will place responsibility, and correct conditions? How soon will society, through public sentiment, put a stop to this wholesale slaughter?

A human life went out the other day and there is a vacant chair in someone's home. A vacant chair, where once sat joy, sorrow, hope, aspiration, love! A vacant chair, to remain vacant forever! To those that are left there remain only memories—memories that tear at the heart and bring tears as the vacant chair brings into being again the things that were said and things that were done.

Death is the final chapter of the Book of Life. It has no place in the early or middle pages, and when accident seizes that final chapter and moves forward, a crime has been committed against God and humanity.

It's How You Feel, Not How Old You Are

WHEN a man arrives at the age of 70 years, says the Stillwater Gazette, it means nothing to him if he has the spirit to go on and keep going on. There are people of 50 and 60 years of age who quit in the stretch, but there are others who go on and on, until they pass the eighty mark, and then continue going on with the same determination as they always evinced.

Don't let the years dominate your mind.

Fall Weather Wonderful

AUTUMN in the Brainerd Lake Region is one of the wonderful periods of the year. Roads are in excellent shape and it is a real pleasure to tour out to the lakes. The air is crisp and keen and there is a joy in living.

Hunting and fishing are on the program and lakes carry little if any ice. Cottages provided with stoves or fireplaces are easily heated. Meals out at the lake taste good and an outing there is enjoyed by the whole family.

THE weather prophets have not been heard from as to the kind of a winter that is in store for us. These old-timers gain their advance knowledge from the habits of birds and animals and other indications. The weather this year has been of the abnormal variety acting like a colt hitched up for the first time. There is still much mild weather in store for us, including Indian Summer and the January thaw which saves a week's coal bill in the middle of that month.

It is claimed that the Northwestern Wildcats will be harder foes to hold scoreless than the Stanford giants of the west.

LITTLE FALLS TEAM OVERPOWERS
HOME BOYS ON GRIDIRON FRIDAYWARRIORS UNABLE TO CON-TEND WITH SUPERIOR DOWN
RIVER SQUAD

Unable to stop the powerful drive of the Little Falls aggregation, the Blue and White Warriors Friday were handed their third defeat of the year by a 19-6 score. Both teams showed plenty of football ability but the down river boys exhibited a power drive with which the Warriors seemed unable to contend.

LaFond, husky Little Falls fullback, was the outstanding ball carrier of the contest. He netted many long gains for the visitors by smashing the line or by circling the ends. He also backed up their fine defense effectively.

Gabius and Templeton carried the ball very well for Brainerd and Schute backed up the line on defense as fullback. Heikinen, playing his first game, proved himself a capable open field runner. Moe and Garvey at tackles and Haas and Wylie at guard and end proved themselves the big boys in the line.

Little Falls got the first score of the games as a result of a well executed drive consisting of line plunges, end runs and off tackle smashes, LaFond doing virtually all the ball carrying. They succeeded in this way in getting the ball to the Brainerd 5-yard line. Then LaFond carried the ball around the end for a touchdown. The plunge for the extra point was unsuccessful.

Little Falls kicked off to Brainerd, and Heikinen returned the ball almost to midfield. Then Brainerd marched down the field till it was first down on the Little Falls 3-yard line. For three downs they bucked the Little Falls line, leaving it fourth down with the ball on the 3-inch line.

Templeton pushed over the line to tie the score. Haas attempted a place kick for the extra point but it was blocked. Then the gun cracked, ending the half. Score: Brainerd, 6; Little Falls, 6.

Haas kicked off to Little Falls and the runner was downed on the 10-yard line. Little Falls again marched down the field and LaFond plunged over the line making the score 12-6 with Little Falls on the big end. The try for the extra point was unsuccessful.

For the rest of the game the ball hovered first in Brainerd's territory and then in the Little Falls end of the field. As the end of the game approached the Blue and White squad opened a passing game, hoping in vain to secure a touchdown. Just a minute before the final gun the Brainerd quarter called for a pass from his own 5-yard line. Suphur of Little Falls intercepted the pass on the 20-yard line and dashed across the goal for a touchdown. An off tackle smash was successful for the extra point. The game ended with the score: Little Falls, 19; Brainerd, 6.

COMING OR GOING
WE CATCH 'EM

George and Elizabeth Irvine attended the High School Senior Dance at Little Falls Saturday night.

Miss Winifred Spencer of the faculty entertained at a bridge luncheon Saturday noon and afternoon.

Miss Tornstrom spent the week-end at Farm Island lake, where she visited with her brother and sister of Excelsior and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Dorn of Robbinsdale.

Mrs. Stone entertained Miss Mathis and Miss Walkup at dinner in Pilgrimage Sunday.

WEEZY'S SNEEZES

Squire: "Did you call me, my Lord?"
Lancelot: "Yes, make haste; bring the can-opener. I've got a flea in my night clothes."

Davy Templeton: "—and what I have told you, my boy, is the story of my experience on the Brainerd football squad."

Enthusiastic Freshman: "But what did they need the rest of the team for?"

Girls, when they went out to swim. Once dressed like Mother Hubbard: Now they have a bolder whim—They dress more like her cupboard.

Hallett C.: "You mustn't ask so many questions, Alice. Don't you know that curiosity once killed a cat?"
Alice N.: "Why? What did the cat want to know?"

"Why is it that a teacher always enjoys calling us our sister's name?"

Freshmen stood on the burning deck. But as far as I could learn, They stood in perfect safety. They were too green to burn!

Dippy definitions:
Desk: A place to put candy and gum wrappers.

Text Book: No apparent use; hence not defined.

Scarce: Ideas.
Lonesome: A dime in a Scotchman's pocket.

Sidelights on the Game

Friday was considered a perfect football day by critics. A few more like that would be appreciated.

Mr. Dammann's little wire-haired dog was playing around with the football. It seems to run in the family.

Even though Harold Moe fumbled the ball during the game, he made up for it later on.

There were so many players sitting on the bench, that the board nearly broke, but owing to the consideration of Jim Garvey, the day was saved.

I guess Friday wasn't a good duck day, for there were seen no ducks flying.

JUNIORS TO BUY
RINGS THIS YEARPLANS FOR YEAR DISCUSSED:
CLASS PLAY TO BE GIVEN
THIS SEMESTER

Many activities were discussed at the junior class meeting last Thursday, which will create a very busy year for the members of the class. Among these are the Prom, parties, class play and a possibility of buying rings this year.

One of the most immediate interest will be a Junior-Senior Fun Carnival to be held in the high school gym November 14. The gym will be divided into two parts, one section for those desiring to play games, and the remaining one-half for other amusements. The Seniors were in favor of a masquerade and the Juniors were against it. The decision will be left to a committee to be appointed in the near future. Those who paid only part of their dues, must pay in full by November 7, which is one week before the carnival.

A class benefit play of some type or other must be presented before the end of the first semester.

The proposition of buying graduation class rings the latter part of this year was brought up and met with the general approval of the members who were present at the meeting. The purpose is to shift some of the usual senior money problems to the junior year.

All must put their shoulders to the wheel and help if this program is to be carried out in the best way possible and of greatest benefit to the class.

HI-Y ADMINISTERS
RITUAL SERVICETHIRTEEN NEW MEMBERS RE-CEIVE PINS AT IMPRES-
SIVE CEREMONY

New members of the Senior Hi-Y, Chapter II were administered the ritual service by the officers of the club, Gerald Cass, president; Harry Osell, vice president; John Linn, secretary; Carl Holvick, treasurer; and Edman Jernberg, sergeant-at-arms.

The purpose, "To create, maintain and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character," is given by each member receiving the ritual service. At this time also, the Hi-Y pin is given the initiate member and explained in all its significance. The ceremony is very impressive and appeals most attractive to the eye. Kenneth Stinson, Leslie Dryburgh, Lyle Mayo, Bob Wylie, Elmer Foster, Ted Franks, George Irvine, Ted Marchel, Joe Marchel, Maurice Larson, Isadore Perlman, and Bill Stout were the members who received the Ritual.

Proceeding this service a general business meeting was held. At this meeting the Older Boys Conference was discussed. This year it will be held at St. Paul the early part of November. A food committee consisting of Maurice Larson, Ted Marchel, Robert Hanson, and George Irvine were appointed to serve next Wednesday. Rev. Olmstead was visitor at the meeting.

Hard-boiled Grocer: "No, sir! no checks! I wouldn't cash a check for my own brother."

George Irvine: "Well, of course, you know your own family better than I do."

What are the three R's?
Rah! Rah! Rah!

All the light some people have is like that of the firefly. It shows them only where they have been, not where they are going.

Miss Laipple: "How many seasons are there?"

Muriel Bedall: "Three."

M. L.: "Only three? What are they?"

M. B.: "Football, basketball and baseball."

YE EDITOR

Now that the first six weeks have passed and you've had time to think over some of those marks on your report cards, those of you who are the slackers have probably begun to realize that it doesn't pay to "bluff" through. But still, when a rather difficult assignment is laid out for you in some class, you think "oh, I don't believe I'll bother about that. I'll get by somehow." But, Mr. Bluffer, you won't get by. You simply can't. All the odds are against you. Just look around you. Notice the people who lead the honor roll, the persons at the head of your class, and those leading the school clubs and activities—are they people who shift along, sliding their work out of their way for someone else to do? No, they're not. They are the people who dig right in—roll their sleeves up, grit their teeth, and settle down and work.

There's backbone to them—good stiff backbone, that didn't just grow that way of its own accord—they made it all. They just straightened up and waited right into their work and did it thoroughly and well—not letting one little bit slide, and you'd be there on top of the pile too if you'd done as they have.

Now is the time to buckle down before it's too late—to late to get in a senior's studying before the final exam, and too late to help yourself. If you "bluff" now, you will be able to stop all of a sudden and begin to really work when you get out of school. And certainly you don't intend to keep on as you are doing, slackers. When you get out and have to shift for yourself—you'll certainly not expect to slide by as you have done. Or if you do, you're in for a grand big jolt. It's been proved thousands of times that the man who works, the man who shoulders his responsibilities, is the one who wins, and the other fellow, the one who tries to slide things, finds himself on the bottom of the pile being stepped on by the hustlers.

So you who boast to the rest of us that you "bluffed through" in English, and "got by" in history—don't be too conceited. We're laughing up at you. You know what you'll soon find out—that you're bound to lose, the chances are one hundred to one against you, and you CAN'T win!

IMPRESSIVE TRI-HI
INSTALLATION HELDCANDLELIGHT SERVICE IS VERY BEAUTIFUL; MOTHER-DAUGHTER
BANQUET ARRANGED

Installation services are usually very impressive but the services of the Tri-Hi club was exceedingly so, and they carried it out in a most dignified and serious manner; impressing each and every girl with the importance of the part she was to play in the bettering and furthering of the club.

In a room totally dark except for the faint flicker of a small candle, Louise Clausen, president, and the three other officers lighted candles, proclaiming their aims and purposes which they intended to carry out during the oncoming year.

After this procedure had been completed with customary formality the two purposes of the club were read and explained by Louise. The two purposes are to create a spirit of friendliness and a closer relationship with God through higher standards of Health, Knowledge, Service, and Spirit.

Then each girl arose and lighted her candle from the presidents and returning to her seat, still standing, placed her hand upon her heart and repeated, after the president, the aims of members. Then each girl was given a membership pin and a prayer closed the services.

What happened next was quite a contrast to what happened in the beginning; as it gave an outlet for all the pent-up emotions of the group. A regular meeting was held in which the plans for the Mother-Daughter Banquet were the main topic of discussion.

Songs were sung, and foods decided upon with such as these questions: "Shall we have pickles or celery?" answered by an unanimous cry for "pickles!"

Altogether a most impressive and enjoyable evening was held installing some 40 odd members into an "up and coming" club.

DISAPPOINTMENT

I had
A little god
One day,
A little god
Of blue;
And rosie,
Like the sunset's tinge,
He
Reminded you.
I placed
My little god,
Upon
A holy shrine,
But off
He tumbled head-long,
He
Couldn't withstand time.

EXCHANGE

We have a new high school paper added to our exchange list, the "Wilohi" of Willmar, Minn. It is a double-page publication and very interesting.

Carleton College's Homecoming took place October 25. A very interesting program was arranged and a game was played with Grinnell.

University of Minnesota's Homecoming is November 1. A football game has been scheduled with Northwestern, which is said will be one of Minnesota's outstanding games.

We have received many letters from the different high schools, asking us to exchange with them. Evidently they don't think we have such a bad paper!

NAVAL RECRUIT
TELLS OF SEA LIFEMR. KANE APPEARS BEFORE
STUDENTS AS PART OF
"NAVY DAY" PROGRAM

"Navy Day" was celebrated, yesterday, with a talk on this subject and songs pertaining to the sea. The Girl's Glee club sang a lovely song "Bells of the Sea" which opened the assembly meeting.

Mr. Kane, an engine man first class, gave the address stressing the athletic side of navy training. Boxing, baseball, basketball and football are the sports partaken of with the members of different ships and schooners even holding a world's series. These sports are held for the purpose of keeping the sailors physically fit and to create a fighting spirit and good sportsmanship.

Along other lines of the work in times of peace he spoke of the Japanese earthquake and the help given there, about the revolution in the South American countries, about the divisions of a ship and the sailors who work in each part.

Another point explained was about the gunnery and engineering of the navy about which he told of target practice and the hardwork of the men who work in the boiler room.

Mr. Kane closed with a humorous incident which showed how orders are carried out aboard a ship. The command is passed from the superior officer by word of mouth to the next officer in rank and so forth down the line till the order is carried out.

The eighth graders initial appearance on the stage closed the observance of "Navy Day" by singing "I Would Be a Sailor" and "Capital Ship."

GIRLS TO PUBLISH
CAMP FIRE PAPERWADITAKA GROUP HIKES OVER
SCENIC RIVER DRIVE

The girls of the Waditaka Camp Fire group hiked merrily down the Scenic River Drive last Tuesday evening. It took approximately two hours and fifteen minutes for the hike. When they reached their destination, they had lunch. The girls returned to their home about 10:30, very tired but happy.

A food sale was the most important question brought before the Netoppep girls last Tuesday. Saturday, October 25, was the date set for the sale. Lillie Casey, Virginia Wilson, Viola Murphy, Marie Erdman, Ruth Sifert, and Marcella Favrou were appointed to take charge of the sale.

Three new members voted in the Netoppep group are: Alta Cregger, Lorna Cooley and Gladys Ylinen.

All the Camp Fire groups in Brainerd are working together on a paper which is given out to every Camp Fire girl once a month. This paper contains all Camp Fire news happening in the past month. Everyone is trying to think of a name for this paper. An Honor will be given to the girl who thinks of the best one. One issue has been published already.

The officers of the Tatapochoon Camp Fire group are:
Pres.—Betty Mahlum
Sec.—Jean Cibuzar
Treas.—Genevieve Twest
Scribe—Flora Jane Elder

We had a very enjoyable time during the summer. The Tatapochoon Camp Fire girls spent a very enjoyable week at the Erickson cottage on Gull Lake, shortly after school closed. The girls especially enjoyed an all day boat trip across the lake. They thought this a delightful way to begin their vacation. They also spent a week end at Mahlum's cottage this fall.

They have been collecting magazines and doing handcraft work. Frances Reese joined the group this fall.

SENIORS URGED TO HAVE PIC-
ONCE

At a Senior meeting held last Tuesday, plans for a party were discussed. It was decided, by vote that, if the Juniors agreed, the two classes will hold a carnival-masquerade party on November 14 in the gym. The president suggested that the gym be divided in half, each half being used for a different type of amusement. A party of this kind is certain to be a success, for all who come will enjoy their own kind of fun.

Although quite a number have had their pictures taken, Miss Olson reminded the members that class pictures should be taken as soon as possible to avoid the Christmas rush. Lyle Mayo announced that hereafter ring orders should be placed with your jeweler, as the last big order has already been sent in.

Fifty cents is the amount to be paid to Alice Nolan or Kenneth Stinson before November first, for your place in the annual.

MR. CAMPBELL RELATES EXPERIENCES TO HI-Y

After a delightful meal consisting of potatoes, meat balls, rolls, pickles, and cake which was served in the club room of the Y. M. C. A., City Engineer R. T. Campbell related many of his interesting experiences to the members of Senior Hi-Y, Chapter II. These adventures were in connection with the construction of a large railroad in Northern Ontario before the war.

Mr. Campbell related many unusual stories of events during his stay in Ontario but he stated that the large amounts of unsettled lands and the poorly built mining towns at that time struck him as being very unusual as this was his first trip away from his home.

In the construction of any railroad, he stated; it is the first job to make the road bed as level as possible by cutting through hills and filling in valleys. The ties and rails are then laid on a solid gravel foundation which stands the abuse of the gravel.

PAT'S PATTERN

Was It Luck

I ran a mile
Without a smile.
And got here slightly late.
"My watch was slow,
It wouldn't go—
Our clock said ten to eight!"

"But just the same,
(Though quite a shame)
"S" passes here are few."
Miss Tornstrom Smiles
With winsome wiles,
And hands me out a "U!"

I went upstairs
Without my airs;
Afraid to face my friends.
But half-way up,
Miss Farranokop
Destroyed the dire suspense.

She wished for me,
Immediately,
To do a chore for her.
So off I went
Where I was sent
(To bring her up her fur.)

And then, oh gee!
It tickled me;
I'd finally won the day;
She signed a pass
To enter class
With "S" which means O.K.!

Wasn't that Friday's game a surprise package, though? Just think: Little Falls beat Brainerd! Two perfectly good enemies changing places again. Now Brainerd is on the defensive. But it didn't happen as easily as it looked.

Coach Burnett of Little Falls became so excited he started clearing the field by chewing grass. One of the Little Falls satellites apologized and said the coach couldn't think and plan as cleverly unless he chewed grass; and, when he became so occupied, the game was sure to be won by Little Falls. Irony, the Bums!

Fred LaFond, the tall player who made two of Little Falls touchdowns, literally carried his team with him when he charged our lines with the pigskin and his number 11EE's fairly made a bridge over our fellows.

The Warriors just had plain hard sailing—in the air. Every time we started to make a good pass, Little Falls intercepted it. Now, that isn't fair, is it? We could have won the game if it hadn't been for Little Falls. Wait till we get them in basketball. He who laughs last laughs loudest. Raise the roof, gang!

Navigation and the Up-River Towns

UNDER the heading, "Navigation and the Up-River Towns," the Minneapolis Tribune on Sunday referred to possible improvements of the Upper Mississippi river, as follows:

Quite probably business and civic groups bidden to a hearing at St. Cloud last week to give their views on improving the Mississippi river above Minneapolis and St. Paul were taken by surprise. It has been a long time since any serious thought has been devoted to river improvements above the Twin Cities.

Yet that possibility was realized years ago by federal engineers, and time was when light craft went as far up the river as Grand Rapids. Probably the legitimate head of navigation on the Mississippi is located about Brainerd, yet it is doubtful if Brainerd has ever seriously considered itself in that light.

With the fact being demonstrated that the rivers have a future in transportation developments Minnesota's up-river towns may begin to consider its possible effect on their future. With a comprehensive river improvement program there is little reason why coal from Illinois and iron ore from the Cuyuna range should not meet at Brainerd and be combined in the process of steel making, or why the processed lignites from Montana and North Dakota should not be transported to steel mills at Brainerd to be used in manufacturing steel.

There is no reason why automobiles should not be manufactured at St. Cloud, or Elk River, or Minneapolis, together with heavy types of farm machinery, and put on the market to the northwest farmers at savings in manufacturing cost which would be considerable, plus the saving in freight rates. It is quite possible that in the up-river country from the Twin Cities there will be some day a considerable industrial district, improving the local markets for products of the farm, increasing northwest prosperity and building up an inland empire far transcending the present in wealth.

In all the up-river towns a quarter of a century ago there were men who saw this possibility. They were never able to devise or finance a plan by which coking coal and iron ore could be brought together in Minnesota on a basis practical for manufacturing, but they believed it quite possible and declared the day would come. Current developments seem to indicate that it is coming. Whether it is coming before the great iron ore measures are exhausted is still a question. Yet it is apparently assured that the processes for coking lignite will soon reach the point where that horn of the dilemma is solved. Preliminary to this development is the improvement of the upper reaches of the Mississippi. It is a project having great possibilities as the first step in the ultimate development of an industrial district that may some day be as great as those in eastern centers built up by the transportation of iron ore to coking coal.

Little Falls got the first score of the games as a result of a well executed drive consisting of line plunges, end runs and off tackle smashes, LaFond doing virtually all the ball carrying. They succeeded in this way in getting the ball to the Brainerd 5-yard line. Then LaFond carried the ball around the end for a touchdown. The plunge for the extra point was unsuccessful.

Little Falls kicked off to Brainerd, and Heikkinen returned the ball almost to midfield. Then Brainerd marched down the field till it was first down on the Little Falls 3-yard line. For three downs they bucked the Little Falls line, leaving it fourth down with the ball on the 3-inch line. Templeton pushed over the line to tie the score. Hass attempted a place kick for the extra point but it was blocked. Then the gun cracked, ending the half. Score: Brainerd, 6; Little Falls, 6.

Hass kicked off to Little Falls and the runner was downed on the 10-yard line. Little Falls again marched down the field and LaFond plunged over the line making the score 12-6 with Little Falls on the big end. The try for the extra point was unsuccessful.

For the rest of the game the ball hovered first in Brainerd's territory and then in the Little Falls end of the field. As the end of the game approached the Blue and White squad opened a passing game, hoping in vain to secure a touchdown. Just a minute before the final gun the Brainerd quarter called for a pass from his own 5-yard line. Suphur of Little Falls intercepted the pass on the 20-yard line and dashed across the goal for a touchdown. An off tackle smash was successful for the extra point. The game ended with the score: Little Falls, 19; Brainerd, 6.

COMING OR GOING WE CATCH 'EM

George and Elizabeth Irvine attended the High School Senior Dance at Little Falls Saturday night.

Miss Winifred Spencer of the faculty entertained at a bridge luncheon Saturday noon and afternoon.

Miss Tornstrom spent the week-end at Farm Island lake, where she visited with her brother and sister of Excelsior and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Dorn of Robbinsdale.

Mrs. Stone entertained Miss Mathis and Miss Walkup at dinner in Pil-lager Sunday.

WEEZY'S SNEEZES

Squire: "Did you call me, my Lord?"
Lancelot: "Yes, make haste; bring the can-opener. I've got a flea in my night clothes."

Davy Templeton: "—and what I have told you, my boy, is the story of my experience on the Brainerd football squad."

Enthusied Freshman: "But what did they need the rest of the team for?"

Girls, when they went out to swim. Once dressed like Mother Hubbard; Now they have a bolder whim— They dress more like her cupboard.

Hallett C.: "You mustn't ask so many questions, Alice. Don't you know that curiosity once killed a cat?"
Alice N.: "Why? What did the cat want to know?"

"Why is it that a teacher always enjoys calling us our sister's name?"

Freshmen stood on the burning deck. But as far as I could learn, They stood in perfect safety. They were too green to burn!

Sidelights on the Game

Friday was considered a perfect football day by critics. A few more like that would be appreciated.

Mr. Dammann's little wire-haired dog was playing around with the football. It seems to run in the family.

Even though Harold Moe fumbled the ball during the game, he made up for it later on.

There were so many players sitting on the bench, that the board nearly broke, but owing to the consideration of Jim Garvey, the day was saved.

I guess Friday wasn't a good duck day, for there were seen no ducks flying.

JUNIORS TO BUY RINGS THIS YEAR

PLANS FOR YEAR DISCUSSED; CLASS PLAY TO BE GIVEN THIS SEMESTER

Many activities were discussed at the junior class meeting last Thursday, which will create a very busy year for the members of the class. Among these are the Prom, parties, class play and a possibility of buying rings this year.

One of the most immediate interest will be a Junior-Senior Fun Carnival to be held in the high school gym November 14. The gym will be divided into two parts, one section for those desiring to play games, and the remaining one-half for other amusements. The Seniors were in favor of a masquerade and the Juniors were against it. The decision will be left to a committee to be appointed in the near future. Those who paid only part of their dues, must pay in full by November 7, which is one week before the carnival.

A class benefit play of some type or other must be presented before the end of the first semester.

The proposition of buying graduation class rings the latter part of this year was brought up and met with the general approval of the members who were present at the meeting. The purpose is to shift some of the usual senior money problems to the junior year.

All must put their shoulders to the wheel and help if this program is to be carried out in the best way possible and of greatest benefit to the class.

HI-Y ADMINISTERS RITUAL SERVICE

THIRTEEN NEW MEMBERS RE- CEIVE PINS AT IMPRES- SIVE CEREMONY

New members of the Senior Hi-Y, Chapter II were administered the ritual service by the officers of the club, Gerald Cass, president; Harry Ossell, vice president; John Linn, secretary; Carl Holvick, treasurer; and Edman Jernberg, sergeant-at-arms.

The purpose, "To create, maintain and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character," is given by each member receiving the ritual service. At this time also, the Hi-Y pin is given the initiate member and explained in all its significance. The ceremony is very impressive and appeals most attractive to the eye. Kenneth Stinson, Leslie Dryburgh, Lyle Mayo, Bob Wygle, Elmer Foster, Ted Franks, George Irvine, Ted Marchel, Joe Marchel, Maurice Larson, Isadore Perlman, and Bill Stout were the members who received the Ritual.

Preceding this service a general business meeting was held. At this meeting the Older Boys Conference was discussed. This year it will be held at St. Paul the early part of November. A food committee consisting of Maurice Larson, Ted Marchel, Robert Hanson, and George Irvine were appointed to serve next Wednesday. Rev. Olmstead was visitor at the meeting.

Hard-boiled Grocer: "No, sir! no checks! I wouldn't cash a check for my own brother."

George Irvine: "Well, of course, you know your own family better than I do."

What are the three R's?
Rah! Rah! Rah!

All the light some people have is like that of the firefly. It shows them only where they have been, not where they are going.

Miss Laipple: "How many seasons are there?"
Muriel Bedall: "Three."

M. L.: "Only three? What are they?"
M. B.: "Football, basketball and baseball."

YE EDITOR

Now that the first six weeks have passed and you've had time to think over some of those marks on your report cards, those of you who are the slackers have probably begun to realize that it doesn't pay to try to "bluff" through. But still, when a rather difficult assignment is laid out for you in some class, you think "oh, I don't believe I'll bother about that. I'll get by somehow." But, Mr. Bluffer, you won't get by. You simply can't. All the odds are against you. Just look around you. Notice the people who lead the honor roll, the persons at the head of your class, and those leading the school clubs and activities—are they people who shift along, sliding their work out of their way for someone else to do? No, they're not. They are the people who dig right in—roll their sleeves up, grit their teeth, and settle down and work.

There's backbone to them—good stiff backbone, that didn't just grow that way of its own accord—they made it stiff. They just straightened up and waited right into their work and did it thoroughly and well—not letting one little bit slide, and you'd be there on top of the pile too if you'd done as they have.

Now is the time to buckle down before it's too late—too late to get in a senior's studying before the final exam, and too late to help yourself. If you "bluff" now, you won't be able to stop all of a sudden and begin to really work when you get out of school. And certainly you don't intend to keep on as you are doing, slackers. When you get out and have to shift for yourself—you'll certainly not expect to slide by as you have done. Or if you do, you're in for a grand big job. It's been proved thousands of times that the man who works, the man who shoulders his responsibilities, is the one who wins, and the other fellow, the one who tries to slide things, finds himself on the bottom of the pile being stepped on by the hustlers.

So you who boast to the rest of us that you "bluffed through" in English, and "got by" in history—don't be too conceited. We're laughing up your sleeves at you. We know what you'll soon find out—that you're bound to lose, the chances are one hundred to one against you, and you CAN'T WIN!

IMPRESSIVE TRI-HI INSTALLATION HELD

CANDLELIGHT SERVICE IS VERY BEAUTIFUL; MOTHER-DAUGHTER BANQUET ARRANGED

Installation services are usually very impressive but the services of the Tri-Hi club was exceedingly so, since they carried it out in a most orderly and serious manner; impressing each and every girl with the importance of the part she was to play in the bettering and furthering of the club.

In a room totally dark except for the faint flicker of a small candle, Louise Clausen, president, and the three other officers lighted candles, proclaiming their aims and purposes which they intended to carry out during the oncoming year.

After this procedure had been completed with customary formality the two purposes of the club were read and explained by Louise. The two purposes are to create a spirit of friendliness and a closer relationship with God through higher standards of Health, Knowledge, Service, and Spirit.

Then each girl arose and lighted her candle from the presidents and returning to her seat, still standing, placed her hand upon her heart and repeated, after the president, the aims of members. Then each girl was given a membership pin and a prayer closed the services.

What happened next was quite a contrast to what happened in the beginning, as it gave an outlet for all the pent-up emotions of the group. A regular meeting was held in which the plans for the Mother-Daughter Banquet were the main topic of discussion.

Songs were sung, and foods decided upon with such as these questions: "Shall we have pickles or celery?" answered by an unanimous cry for "olives!"

Altogether a most impressive and enjoyable evening was held installing some 40 odd members into an "up and coming" club.

DISAPPOINTMENT

I had
A little god
One day,
A little god
Of blue;
And rosy,
Like the sunset's tinge,
He resembled you.

I placed
My little god,
Upon
A holy shrine,
But off
He tumbled head-long.

He,
Couldn't withstand time.

UPPER CLASSMEN TO UNITE AND HOLD MASQUERADE FUN CARNIVAL NOV. 14

EXCHANGE

We have a new high school paper added to our exchange list, the "Wilohi" of Willmar, Minn. It is a double-page publication and very interesting.

Carleton College's Homecoming took place October 25. A very interesting program was arranged and a game was played with Grinnell.

University of Minnesota's Homecoming is November 1. A football game has been scheduled with Northwestern, which is said will be one of Minnesota's outstanding games.

We have received many letters from the different high schools, asking us to exchange with them. Evidently they don't think we have such a bad paper!

NAVAL RECRUIT TELLS OF SEA LIFE

MR. KANE APPEARS BEFORE STUDENTS AS PART OF "NAVY DAY" PROGRAM

"Navy Day" was celebrated, yesterday, with a talk on the subject and songs pertaining to the sea. The Girls Glee club sang a lovely song "Bells of the Sea" which opened the assembly meeting.

Mr. Kane, an engine man first class, gave the address stressing the athletic side of navy training. Boxing, baseball, basketball and football are the sports partaken of with the members of different ships and schooners contending against each other even holding a world's series. These sports are held for the purpose of keeping the sailors physically fit and to create a fighting spirit and good sportsmanship.

Along other lines of the work in times of peace he spoke of the Japanese earthquake and the help given there, about the revolution in the South American countries, about the divisions of a ship and the sailors who work in each part.

Another point explained was about the gunnery and engineering of the navy about which he told of target practice and the hardwork of the men who work in the boiler room.

Mr. Kane closed with a humorous incident which showed how orders are carried out aboard a ship. The command is passed from the superior officer by word of mouth to the next officer in rank and so forth down the line till the order is carried out.

The eighth graders initial appearance on the stage closed the observance of "Navy Day" by singing "I Would Be a Sailor" and "Capital Ship."

GIRLS TO PUBLISH CAMP FIRE PAPER

WADITKA GROUP HIKES OVER SCENIC RIVER DRIVE

The girls of the Waditka Camp Fire group hiked merrily down the Scenic River Drive last Tuesday evening. It took approximately two hours and fifteen minutes for the hike. When they reached their destination, they had lunch. The girls returned to their home about 10:30, very tired but happy.

A food sale was the most important question brought before the Netoppew girls last Tuesday. Saturday, October 25, was the date set for the sale. Little Casey, Virginia Wilson, Viola Murphy, Marie Erdman, Ruth Sifer, and Marcella Favrou were appointed to take charge of the sale.

Three new members voted in the Netoppew group are: Alta Cregar, Lorna Cooley and Gladys Ylinen.

All the Camp Fire groups in Brainerd are working together on a paper which is given out to every Camp Fire girl once a month. This paper contains all Camp Fire news happening in the past month. Everyone is trying to think of a name for this paper. An Honor will be given to the girl who thinks of the best one. One issue has been published already.

The officers of the Tatapochoon Camp Fire group are:
Pres.—Betty Mahlum
Sec.—Jean Cibuzar
Treas.—Genevieve Tweet
Scribe—Flora Jane Elder

We had a very enjoyable time during the summer. The Tatapochoon Camp Fire girls spent a very enjoyable week at the Erickson cottage on Gull Lake, shortly after school closed. The girls especially enjoyed an all day boat trip across the lake. They thought this a delightful way to begin their vacation. They also spent a week end at Mahlum's cottage this fall.

They have been collecting magazines and doing handcraft work. Frances Reese joined the group this fall.

SENIORS URGED TO HAVE PIC- TURES TAKEN AT ONCE

At a Senior meeting held last Tuesday, plans for a party were discussed. It was decided, by vote that, if the Juniors agreed, the two classes will hold a carnival-masquerade party on November 14 in the gym. The president suggested that the gym be divided in half, each half being used for a different type of amusement. A party of this kind is certain to be a success, for all who come will enjoy their own kind of fun.

Although quite a number have had their pictures taken, Miss Olson reminded the members that class pictures should be taken as soon as possible to avoid the Christmass rush.

Lyle Mayo announced that hereafter ring orders should be placed with your jeweler, as the last big order has already been sent in.

Fifty cents is the amount to be paid to Alice Nolan or Kenneth Stinson before November first, for your place in the annual.

MR. CAMPBELL RELATES EXPERIENCES TO HI-Y

After a delightful meal consisting of potatoes, meat balls, rolls, pickles, and cake which was served in the club rooms of the Y. M. C. A., City Engineer R. T. Campbell related many of his interesting experiences to the members of Senior Hi-Y, Chapter II. These adventures were in connection with the construction of a large railroad in Northern Ontario before the war.

Mr. Campbell related many unusual stories of events during his stay in Ontario but he stated that the large amounts of unsettled lands and the poorly built mining towns at that time struck him as being very unusual as this was his first trip away from his home.

In the construction of any railroad, he stated; it is the first job to make the road bed as level as possible by cutting through hills and filling in valleys. The ties and rails are then laid on a solid gravel foundation which stands the abuse of the gravel.

PAT'S PATTER

Was It Luck

I ran a mile
Without a smile,
And got there slightly late.
"My watch was slow,
It wouldn't go—
Our clock said ten to eight!"
"But just the same,
(Though quite a shame)
"S" passes here are few."
Miss Tornstrom Smiles
With winsome wiles,
And hands me out a "U!"

I went upstairs
Without my airs;
Afraid to face my friends.
But half-way up,
Miss Farrankop
Destroyed the dire suspense.

She wished for me,
Immediately
To do a chore for her.
So off I went
Where I was sent
(To bring her up her fur.)

And then, oh gee!
It tickled me;
I'd finally won the day;
She signed a pass
To enter class
With "S" which means O.K.!

Wasn't that Friday's game a surprise package, though? Just think: Little Falls beat Brainerd! Two perfectly good enemies changing places again. Now Brainerd is on the defensive. But it didn't happen as easily as it looked.

Coach Burnett of Little Falls became so excited he started clearing the field by chewing grass. One of the Little Falls satellites apologized and said the coach couldn't think and plan as cleverly unless he chewed grass; and, when he became so occupied, the game was sure to be won by Little Falls. Irony, the Bums!

Fred LaFond, the tall player who made two of Little Falls touchdowns, literally carried his team with him when he charged our lines with the pigskin and his number 11EE's fairly made a bridge over our fellows.

The Warriors just had plain hard sailing—in the air. Every time we started to make a good pass, Little Falls intercepted it. Now, that isn't fair, is it? We could have won the game if it hadn't been for Little Falls. Wait till we get them in basketball. He who laughs last laughs loudest. Raise the rug, gang!

TWO UNDEFEATED BIG TEN LEADERS CLASH ON SATURDAY

NORTHWESTERN HAS CRUSHED 2 OPPONENTS

NOW REGARDED AS STRONGEST AGGREGATION IN THE CONFERENCE FOLD

GOPHER'S CLAIM TO CLEAR RECORD BASED ON 6-0 DEFEAT OF INDIANA

By DIXON STEWART
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, Oct. 28.—Two undefeated Big Ten leaders, Northwestern and Minnesota, will meet at Minneapolis Saturday in the week's most important middle western game, bringing together two teams with perfect conference records for the first time since the opening games of the season.

Michigan, the other member of the Big Ten's select trio of unbeaten teams, has an open date this week and will not return to conference competition until Nov. 15, when the Wolverines play Minnesota.

Other games involving conference elevens this week are:

Purdue vs. Illinois, at Urbana, Ill.

Wisconsin vs. Ohio State, at Columbus.

Princeton vs. Chicago, at Chicago.

Indiana vs. Notre Dame, at South Bend, Ind.

Iowa vs. Detroit, at Detroit.

Northwestern has crushed two previous Big Ten opponents, Ohio State and Illinois, and is regarded as the strongest aggregation in the conference, while Minnesota's claim to a perfect conference record is based on a 7-0 defeat of Indiana.

Return of Captain Hank Bruder and Reb Russell, backfield stars who have been absent since the opening game of the year against Tulane has given Northwestern its full strength for the first time this season and makes the Wildcats a strong favorite to beat Minnesota.

Wisconsin's "power house," which failed in its bid against Purdue, will have an opportunity to redeem itself against Ohio State. The Buckeyes outgained both Northwestern and Michigan and Wisconsin regards the game as a chance to prove superiority to the two undefeated title contenders.

Purdue, which still has a chance to win titular honors, faces a dangerous opponent in Bob Zuppke's Illini. Illinois made a great comeback after its 32 to 0 defeat by Northwestern, and held Michigan to a 15 to 7 score.

Chicago's unimpressive Maroons meet Princeton, a traditional rival, in the outstanding intersectional contest.

Even the most optimistic Indiana fans are willing to concede Notre Dame a big advantage over the Hoosiers. The game is regarded as a "breather" in Notre Dame's strenuous schedule.

Iowa—already defeated by Oklahoma A. & M., Centenary and Purdue, appears destined for another setback by Detroit University.

QUITE A BIT BELOW STANDARD OF LAST WEEK

SOUTH AND MIDDLE WEST TO FURNISH MOST OF SATURDAY'S BIG GAMES

DARTMOUTH, UNDEFEATED AND UNDISMAYED, TO MEET YALE IN BOWL

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Oct. 28.—With many of the leading elevens taking "breathers" in preparation for the stern tasks ahead, this week's football program is quite a bit below the standard set by the Saturdays of Oct. 17 and 25.

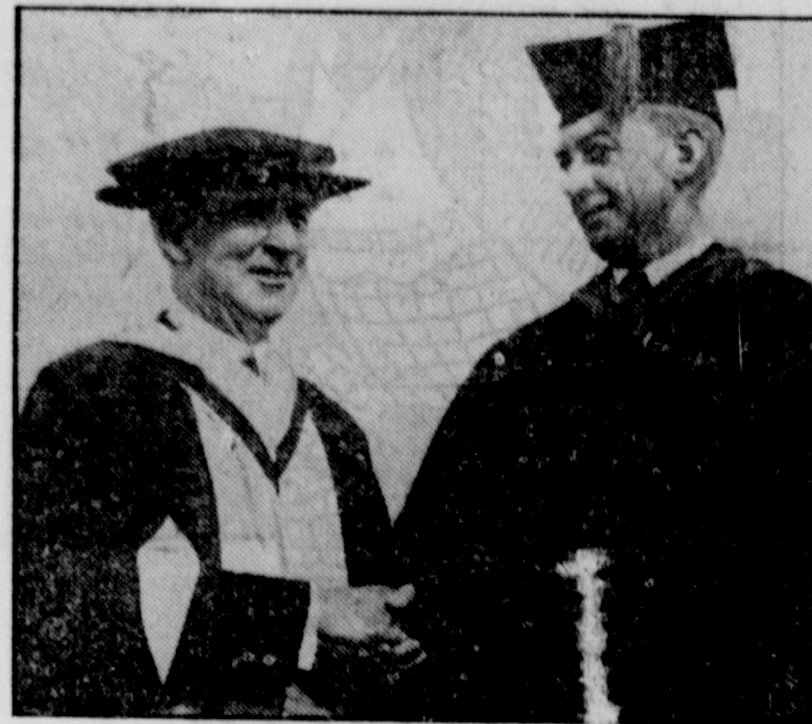

The south and middle west will furnish most of Saturday's big games, but the east with Dartmouth against Yale at New Haven, will, in point of popular interest, supply the country's outstanding contest. Dartmouth, undefeated and undisputed by the knowledge that a Big Green team has yet to defeat Yale in the Bowl, will seek to prove that it is the kingpin eastern outfit, while Yale will endeavor to wipe out the memory of that defeat by Georgia and tie by Army.

The only really worth-while game the east has to offer is the intersectional affair between Pennsylvania and Kansas at Philadelphia.

Other eastern games are Cornell vs. Columbia, Fordham vs. West Virginia, Army vs. North Dakota, and Brown vs. Syracuse.

The mid-west bristles with good games. Minnesota and Northwestern, both undefeated in the Big Ten race, get together at Minneapolis in a battle which should go a long way towards

QUEER NAMES FOR WINDS AND RAINS

Nomenclature Varies in Different Countries.

Washington.—In foreign countries it may be a buran, pooraga, a paupero, but here in the United States it's just a plain blizzard. Each country has its own name for its distinctive winds, but fewer than a dozen are recognized by meteorologists, says a report of the National Geographic society.

Algeria dreads the coming of the chills. Nacarangua looks out for daily chubascos in the summer time, Spain scorchers under the heat of an African leveche, and Persia has resigned itself to the shamal. In America these winds are common but are hiding under what the foreigner would call "assumed names."

Winds, for instance.

A visit to Australia would find many curious names for the winds. The cool breeze blowing in from the ocean would be a "Fremantle doctor," a rushing hurricane is a "willy willy," and an American hot weather thunderstorm has the nickname of "Cock-eyed Bob."

In the Far East there is the monsoon, a possession that has been known to halt the enthusiasm of the most ardent sail gatherer in India. With the coming of monsoon downpours, the salt pans are now muddy pools. Bombay political gatherings have been stopped and Englishmen have taken to the hills for refuge. A monsoon originates in India, divides into two streams, one striking the inland and the other going up the Ganges valley where it spreads its torrents and prevents the peninsula from becoming another Sahara desert.

Greatest Rainfall.

On the wing of this wind is carried the world's greatest rainfall. On Cherrapunji, at the head of the Himalaya foothills, the monsoon drops more water than does any other wind in the world. In summer Cherrapunji lives in a nature made shower bath, with 424 inches of rain falling a year, enough to fill an open tank 35 feet high.

The home of the blizzard is Adeline land in Antarctica. Here a yearly average of 50 miles per hour is maintained and explorers record that an Adeline blizzard kept a speed of 107 miles an hour for eight hours with gusts running as high as 200 miles per hour. Houses buried under the snow were necessary to obtain these figures, the explorers having only their instruments projecting above the surface.

QUITE A BIT BELOW STANDARD OF LAST WEEK

SOUTH AND MIDDLE WEST TO FURNISH MOST OF SATURDAY'S BIG GAMES

DARTMOUTH, UNDEFEATED AND UNDISMAIED, TO MEET YALE IN BOWL

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Oct. 28.—With many of the leading eleven taking "breathers" in preparation for the stern tasks ahead, this week's football program is quite a bit below the standard set by the Saturdays of Oct. 17 and 25.

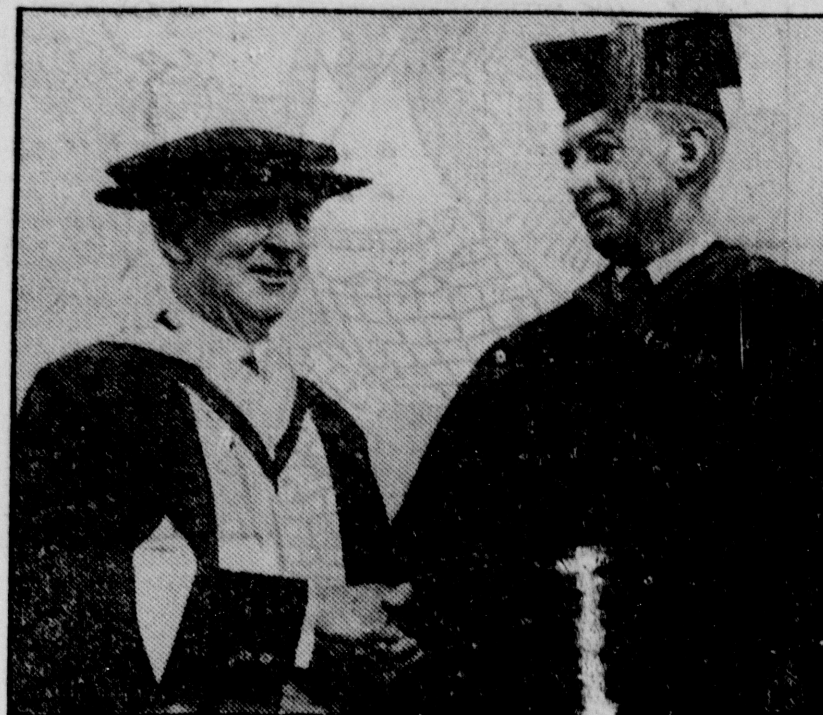

The south and middle west will furnish most of Saturday's big games, but the east with Dartmouth against Yale at New Haven, will, in point of popular interest, supply the country's outstanding contest. Dartmouth, undefeated and undismaied by the knowledge that a Big Green team has yet to defeat Yale in the Bowl, will seek to prove that it is the kingpin eastern outfit, while Yale will endeavor to wipe out the memory of that defeat by Georgia and tie by Army.

The only really worth-while game the east has to offer is the intersectional affair between Pennsylvania and Kansas at Philadelphia.

Other eastern games are Cornell vs. Columbia, Fordham vs. West Virginia, Army vs. North Dakota, and Brown vs. Syracuse.

The mid-west bristles with good games. Minnesota and Northwestern, both undefeated in the Big Ten race, get together at Minneapolis in a battle which should go a long way towards

QUEER NAMES FOR WINDS AND RAINS

Nomenclature Varies in Different Countries.

Washington.—In foreign countries it may be a buran, pooraga, a pampero, but here in the United States it's just a plain blizzard. Each country has its own name for its distinctive winds, but fewer than a dozen are recognized by meteorologists, says a report of the National Geographic society.

Algeria dreads the coming of the chills, Nacragua looks out for daily chubascos in the summer time, Spain scorchers under the heat of an African leveche, and Persia has resigned itself to the shamal. In America these winds are common but are hiding under what the foreigner would call "assumed names."

Winds, for instance. A visit to Australia would find many curious names for the winds. The cool breeze blowing in from the ocean would be a "Fremantle doctor," a rushing hurricane is a "willy willy," and an American hot weather thunderstorm has the nickname of "Coek-eyed Bob."

In the Far East there is the monsoon, a possession that has been known to halt the enthusiasm of the most ardent salt gatherer in India. With the coming of monsoon downpours, the salt pans are now muddy pools. Bombay political gatherings have been stopped and Englishmen have taken to the hills for refuge. A monsoon originates in India, divides into two streams, one striking the inland and the other going up the Ganges valley where it spreads its torrents and prevents the peninsula from becoming another Sahara desert.

Greatest Rainfall. On the wing of this wind, is carried the world's greatest rainfall. On Cherrapunji, at the head of the Himalaya foothills, the monsoon drops more water than does any other wind in the world. In summer Cherrapunji lives in a nature made shower bath, with 424 inches of rain falling a year, enough to fill an open tank 35 feet high.

The home of the blizzard is Adeline land in Antarctica. Here a yearly average of 50 miles per hour is maintained and explorers record that an Adeline blizzard kept a speed of 107 miles an hour for eight hours with gusts running as high as 200 miles per hour. Houses buried under the snow were necessary to obtain these figures, the explorers having only their instruments projecting above the surface.

Improved Ice for Rinks
Max Heinrich Gurth, a Berlin chemist, claims to have invented what he calls opal ice. It consists of water boiled with certain chemicals. The formula is secret. It is not a refrigerator. It is for the preparation of skating surfaces in rinks.

GRID MASTER MINDS

SPORT 10-28 BUG

MOST important of fundamentals for a winning football system would seem to be the selection of a first-class coach as even a cursory study of that game's history shows. There have been few great teams throughout the years without distinctly great coaches. Notre Dame was all but unheard of until Knute Rockne took charge there, Harvard was slipping into comparative obscurity about two decades ago when the late Percy Haughton was made chief football prexy at Cambridge, Stanford was just another team until "Pop" Warner went West to show 'em how, and so on through the annals of the grid.

Now Columbia is trying ardently to achieve football prestige. Hence, last Winter, the astute Lou Little, who had won much success at Georgetown, was secured to build a real grid machine for the huge school on Morningside Heights in New York City. Little's Georgetown teams in recent years have been smashing, smart outfits which revealed the fruits of wise coaching.

Columbia, despite its very large student body and prosperous resources, has been all but a nonentity in the football world. Its neighbors, New York University and Fordham, have been forging ahead as grid powers; the former coached by Chick Meahan and the latter by Major Frank Cavanaugh. Columbia men demanded a change and so its football powers secured Coach Little, who once starred as a player at Penn.

Thus far, and Little had to start from scratch if ever a coach did. Columbia has been improving slowly. The Blue and White have enough excellent backs but, as is usual, the line problem is tough indeed. Ralph Hewitt, Joe Stanczyk, Manuel Rivero, Jay Hodupp and other backs flash brilliantly, but when faced by stern opposition they need a stiffer front wall than Columbia has provided so far this year.

Columbia plays its old rival, Cornell, next Saturday, and the Big Red team is touted as extra strong. This will provide one of Columbia's new Little system, but, it should be remembered, it usually takes at least three seasons to determine the worth of a ball coach.

Notre Dame Meets Indiana '11' in New Stadium

MARTY BRILL • FRANK CARIDEO • LUCIEN ASHEY • ED HUGHES • GEORGE ROSS.
Once again in the New Stadium at South Bend, Ind., will be the scene of a thrilling football classic when Notre Dame meets the University of Indiana Eleven on November 1. The "Irish" will put in the line-up: Larry Mullins, fullback; Marty Brill, halfback; Frank Carideo, quarterback; while among the stars of Indiana Eleven will be: Lucien Ashby, halfback; George Ross, halfback, and Ed Hughes, fullback.

EXTRA POSTAL CLERKS DURING HOLIDAY SEASON

224,000 TO BE EMPLOYED DURING THE CHRISTMAS RUSH

ORDERS ISSUED TODAY BY POSTMASTER GENERAL BROWN

Washington, Oct. 28.—(UP)—Special instructions covering employment of 224,000 extra workers during the Christmas holiday rush were issued today by Postmaster General Brown.

To aid the unemployment situation, postmasters throughout the country were instructed to employ to the fullest extent possible competent men who have families to support and who are now without work.

The postoffices will cooperate with federal relief agencies and local charities in selecting temporary help, it was said.

Brown ordered that no regular clerk carrier or laborer should be permitted to work overtime in excess of two hours, a day, excepting such trained distributors as are needed for speedy handling of the mail.

Commends Investigation

October 27, 1930.
To Editor Brainerd Dispatch,
Brainerd, Minn.
Dear Sir:

I have watched with considerable interest, the progress of the investigation of the road and bridge expenditures and I wish to commend the newspapers who have upheld County Attorney A. J. Sullivan in this investigation.

As a business man and taxpayer I feel that a disclosure of fraud should be supported by all of the people of the county regardless of the time or year.

Yours truly,

Editor Brainerd Daily Dispatch,

Dear Sir:

Just a few words regarding the investigation of the road and bridge fund which has received considerable mention in the papers of late.

There seems to be a tendency by some parties to belittle the results obtained in this investigation.

It is my opinion that this investigation is a very appropriate thing, in that any move to save the taxpayers money is always in order and certainly feel that Mr. Sullivan is leading up to a saving of thousands of dollars of county money in the years to come.

We are very fortunate to have as county attorney a man of such calibre as A. J. Sullivan and as taxpayers we should be interested in returning to office a man who has so ably demonstrated that he has the interests of the taxpayers at heart.

Respectfully,

IVER BENSON,

Editor Brainerd Dispatch:

Our present Chief Justice of the Supreme court, Samuel B. Wilson and our present Associate Justice, Andrew Holt and Royal A. Stone are candidates for re-election and their names will appear on the tickets.

The Voluntary Committee at St. Paul has requested that a working committee be formed in this county to advance the interests of above candidates.

On account of the interest taken in our own judicial contest and in other local contests no such committee will be formed.

I will state however, that I have interviewed nearly all the lawyers of the County and many other well informed citizens and it is the very prevailing, if not the unanimous, opinion that the above named candidates have been tried and have proven that they are able, hard working and impartial judges and should be re-elected.

I offer the above for the reason that printed literature and public speakers have hardly touched this question and that many if not most voters are almost wholly uninformed in the matter.

Your letter of the 25th was received this afternoon.

I regret that you did not approve of my talk at the League of Women Voters' meeting last Tuesday evening. I sought to comply with the proper conditions announced, and to avoid unseemly argument.

What you said, after my time was closed, particularly the questions directed at me, could not be answered at that meeting without imposing on the courtesy of our hostesses. You have the answer in my letter of the 22d to the Dispatch. There seems no occasion for adding to or withdrawing anything contained in my letter, nor for indulging in an exchange of personalities with you.

FARMERS OKAY T. B. AREA TEST

1948 Cattle Owners Sign Petition;
Next Move, Its Presentation to Commissioners

RECOGNIZED AS VALUABLE

County's Expense First Year $4,000;
State to Pay Costs of Tests Thereafter

Farmers formally placed their stamp for approval on the T. B. area testing of cattle by more than the required number for Crow Wing county signing petitions to place it into effect.

County Agent E. G. Roth announced today that a total of 1048 cattle owners in the county had signed the petition. The fact that here are 1341 cattle owners in all in the county shows the popularity of the move, he said.

The next step now to make the test valid is its presentation to the County Board of Commissioners. This will be done at the board's November 1 meeting this Saturday. W. A. Pack, Livestock Commissioner of the Livestock Sanitary Board, a disciple of this advance move, will be present to urge its adoption by the county board.

In accepting the area testing the county must stand the expense of the first test. This will be approximately $4,000 to be appropriated by the board. Thereafter all expenses pertaining to future tests every two years of the cattle registered in the county will be paid by the state. Records show there are now 14,632 cattle in the county.

The area testing is recognized as valuable to cattle owners. Because of the demand of the eastern market for butter from tuberculosis tested cows, the Land O' Lakes is offering a cent more a pound to farmers where the test is in force. This in itself will be approximately $10,000 more to farmers of Crow Wing county next year on the basis of one million pounds of butter manufactured in this county in a year.

At the present time some 20 counties in the state are without the test. Minnesota however is working on the end of having the state free from tuberculosis cattle. Such has already been accomplished in Michigan and Iowa while Wisconsin is putting across a progressive move to accomplish that.

METROPOLITAN OPERA SEASON OPENS IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, Oct. 28.—(U.P.) The Metropolitan opera season opened last night with its usual glitter and parade of the social elite.

The opera which inaugurated the 46th season of the Metropolitan Opera Company and the 23rd year of the reign of Giulio Gatti-Cazazza as director was the familiar Verdi's "Aida."

The musty gold and red interior of the ancient house at Broadway and 39th street, which was opened in 1883, glittered as usual with a gathering of New York's social leaders, their guests and such of the common people who care enough about the opening night of the opera to stand in line for hours to get seats.

The usual pomp and circumstances, nevertheless, seemed to be missing. The house was crowded, of course, and the customary 4,000 people found their way in to hear Maria Meulder, Karin Branzell, Giuseppe de Luca, Giovanni Martenelli and the others of the cast, vocalize their way through the familiar but ever enchanting arias of Verdi in his spectacular opera.

Grief Stricken Families at Crosby Prepare for Burials of Men Plunged to Death

Saddened by grief, three Crosby families today completed arrangements for the burial of three men who were plunged to their deaths down a 200 foot shaft at the Louise mine Monday morning.

Two of the victims will be buried tomorrow. At 9 a. m. rites will be conducted from the Catholic church at Crosby for Frank Mesner, husband and father of three children while at 2:30 p. m. from the Koop mortuary the funeral of Henry Pagetors who leaves a widow will be held.

Rites for Oscar Backstrom who leaves a widow and three children will be conducted at 2 p. m. Thursday from the Koop mortuary at Crosby. All will be buried in the Crosby cemetery.

The three men were instantly killed when a cable attached to a skip they were working from in repairing the mine shaft suddenly snapped, sending them hurtling down the shaft.

Questions of Claims for Disabled and Insurance for Veterans Answered

The school of instruction held at the court house last Saturday night under the supervision of the American Legion was well attended. Legion service officers representing the following posts were here: Little Falls, Bertha, Isle, Staples, Wadena, Browerville, Remer and Brainerd.

Instructions were given on the handling of all types of claims and benefits for the disabled ex-service man. All of the recent changes in the laws governing the care of the disabled man and his family were brought out and discussed. A "question box" was conducted in which time the officials of the Veterans Bureau and Soldier Welfare department answered a large number of questions regarding different phases of service work.

Among the benefits that were discussed and one that the average ex-service man is ignorant of is that of government insurance. It is known as war risk insurance and was carried by most every soldier during the last war and is still available to ex-service men in good health. The following facts about it are listed below:

A recent amendment to the World War Veterans' Act permits veterans who were entitled to apply for insurance while in the service, who are now in good health, to apply for Government Life Insurance at this time.

This insurance may be obtained in multiples of $500, but not less than $1,000 or more than $10,000.

Under this amendment to the law, those veterans of the World War who are in good health, irrespective of whether they applied for insurance while in service or have since allowed their insurance to lapse may now apply for insurance up to $10,000, with the understanding that the amount of insurance applied for, plus the amount of the insurance now in force or previously surrendered for cash cannot exceed $10,000.

A more recent amendment to the law removed all restrictions as to who may be named beneficiary under Government Life Insurance, and it is now possible for a policyholder to designate any person, firm, corporation or legal entity as the beneficiary under Government Insurance.

WINS MILITARY CAMP LAND APPEAL

Court Awards Little Falls Man $3500 for 80 Acres of Land

On Saturday and Monday, there was heard before a jury in Morrison county, district court, before Judge Nye, the appeal of John Eckerson of Little Falls, from the award of the commissioners appointed by the court in the condemnation of land for the new military camp in Morrison county.

The commissioners awarded Mr. Eckerson $2121.00 for his eighty acres in Green Prairie township. The jury last evening increased the award and returned a verdict for Mr. Eckerson in the sum of $3500.

Assistant Attorney General H. B. Sherwood of St. Paul, formerly of Brainerd, represented the state and Hilding Swanson, of Swanson, Swanson & Swanson, of Brainerd, represented Mr. Eckerson.

This is the first appeal heard on the awards made. Gill Keen and James M. Quinn testified for Eckerson as to the value of timber on the land, and neighbor farmers as to value of land. E. H. Rhodes of the Forestry Department testified for the state, as to timber, Adjutant General Walsh and A. J. Roe, commissioner, as to values.

Neighbors' Argument Aired in Court When Assault Charge Brought

A West Brainerd woman appeared in municipal court this morning with her three small children, one in arms, and pleaded guilty to striking a neighbor child "because she wouldn't get off their hayrack."

Mrs. William Roloff who was fined $1 by Judge J. H. Warner, the fine alone.

being suspended when she was unable to pay it, complained to the court that because of her part in the neighborly argument someone broke the hayrack with a hammer last evening.

The complaint of assault in the third degree was entered by W. H. McAlister who charged that Mrs. Roloff struck his nine year old daughter William with a stick across the small of the back on October 25.

"I told the girl not to play on the hayrack and she refused to leave," Mrs. Roloff said, "moreover the McAlister girls won't leave my children alone."

Mrs. William Roloff who was fined $1 by Judge J. H. Warner, the fine

being suspended when she was unable to pay it, complained to the court that because of her part in the neighborly argument someone broke the hayrack with a hammer last evening. The complaint of assault in the third degree was entered by W. H. McAllister who charged that Mrs. Roloff struck his nine year old daughter William with a stick across the small of the back on October 25. "I told the girl not to play on the hayrack and she refused to leave," Mrs. Roloff said, "moreover the McAllister girls wont leave my children alone."

"JUDY" By Winifred Van Duzer

JUDITH ARCHER, young school teacher, is aboard ship on a well-earned vacation. Her mother, whom she supports, meets a Mr. Tennant. Judy, realizing she is unattractive, is lonely. Her prejudice against men weakens when she receives attention from Kit Camp, ship's radio operator.

CHAPTER VIII.

BETSY ROWE'S stateroom was the tiniest on all the ship. And the darkest. It was tucked away at the corner of an inner tier of cabins and the steward used it as a catch-all for his brooms and dust mops on most voyages since even the most thrifty of vacationists usually refused it. But the room suited Betsy. "Got it for a song," she told Judy. "What do I care where I sleep? A live girl's never in her cabin unless she's asleep. Besides I had other uses for my nickels and dimes. Sit down, Ju—over there on the bed—till I show you."

There was nowhere to sit but on the bed. Clothes were scattered everywhere; the wash basin and the one chair were piled with powder boxes, rouge boxes, perfume bottles, brushes, combs—everything. Betsy began to try things on. She would scoop up a lovely fragile gown from the floor, slide it over her head, go undulating like a manikin in the narrow space beside the bed.

"Like it, Ju? Cost a pretty penny I'm telling you. This ought to knock 'em for a row of painted totem poles!"

Frills, thin, wispy drapings; delicate silks. Pert little impractical sports things designed for anything but sports. Shoes which might have stepped from magazine ads. Frenchy slanted hats. Judy thrilled a little, envied a little. "Nothing suitable for a sea trip, Betsy. What in the world will you do if it storms?"

Betsy perched on the edge of the berth and swung long, unstockinged legs in high-heeled green slippers and puffed smoke rings at the skylight.

"If it storms I'll be cuddled in some warm corner wrapping myself around a high-ball, dearie. Who cares for 'suitable' clothes? No girl ever caught a handsome man with 'suitable' clothes."

"Is that what you came for? To catch a man? I expect you're just being smart."

"You burn me up, Ju. A husband—the right one, I mean—man with looks and coin and all the trimmings—is what all of us want, isn't it? Why not be honest! No sense to mid-Victorian stuff. The coy and blushing maiden is out, old dear. She's as out as hoop skirts and men getting on their knees to propose."

"How do men propose these days?"

"Oh, they have their preferences. Some grab you by the neck while you're dancing and holler above the saxophones: 'What d'y say, baby? Shall we jazz the Lohengrin?'"

"Well, I think girls are the losers. Better drop it all—love and marriage—the whole business—than be treated like part of the evening entertainment. You're wrong, Betsy; every girl isn't stalking a husband. There are some left who don't go around using sex for a snare, thank goodness. Girls have learned that the feminine brain is equal to the very finest variety of male ditto and a lot of them are using that knowledge to their advantage."

"How do men propose these days?"

airy panel was something out of a French fashion magazine.

But something was wrong.

From the tips of the little silver slippers, Peggy brought out the pearl and crystal necklet which lay very sweetly about her throat Judy was right. Above the necklet she was not.

"It's your hair, lamb. I've told you, and told you—"

Peggy's fingers began the old task of pulling, loosening, roughing. "There—do leave it. Perhaps you won't need your glasses tonight?"

Judy would not give up the glasses. "I'm a school teacher, remember. Not a frivolous young thing."

"Couldn't you be a frivolous young thing? If you'd try."

"I'm afraid it's no use, Mother, but I will try to remember about my hair."

She did not remember, as it turned out. Almost before she had slipped into the velvet coat fashioned to complete the gown, the curls across her forehead had been tucked back. And by the time she had taken her place in the dining saloon the waves Peggy had so carefully laid across her ears were beginning to look sleek and constrained, because her restless fingers kept poking at them, smoothing them.

The coat bothered her, too. The wide sleeves with fur bands at the cuffs got in her way. She began to think that beautiful clothes were not her sort of garments.

Cap'n Charley, appearing this evening for the first time, gave them a ceremonious bow. "Running into rough weather," he belatedly. "Be off the Banks in another few hours. That's where old Bill Boreas and all his brothers lie in wait."

"The Banks?" Judy wanted to know.

"Banks of Newfoundland, my dear. Don't be alarmed if the foghorn sings all night. There's a saying that only fifty days a year are clear off the Banks."

But when he saw the bride clinging to her husband and the surprised looking London couple making alarmed movements, he hastened to add, "No danger. Eh, then, no danger at all." And he laughed in such a genial way that everybody glanced about to see who had been afraid, and the din at Betsy Rowe's table rose to a point where all the girls were shrieking and the men singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Later Judy refused politely but firmly to join that crowd, despite Betsy's noisy invitation and Peggy's secret urging.

She insisted on trailing Peggy to the music room where sedate passengers gathered for the Sunday night concert. She sat on a little divan in the half circle of a bow window and while Peggy listened happily to the round-faced orchestra leader, who looked like portraits of Schubert, as he put his orchestra through a long program, Judy kept watching couples strolling on deck. Couples who drew into sheltered corners. Couples who drifted through the lounge toward the ballroom where they would dance after the orchestra had finished the concert.

Judy watched and was lonely. It was a new sensation, the wish to be like the girls who strolled with a male arm around their waists. With someone saying things that made them flush and laugh and look down.

Two-Dollar Bill Called

"Just Darned Nuisance"

The idea that there is something unlucky about the $2 bill—so that many persons tear the corners off them to avert misfortune—occasionally arouses curiosity.

A number of our readers have written in with suggestions to account for the belief in the unluckiness of this particular note. One, however, a merchant in Pennsylvania, says from his experience as a retailer that "there is no question of superstition in connection with the $2 bill, it is just a darned nuisance."

"There is no compartment provided in our cash register for them," he writes, "and when we are handed one by a customer we have to secrete it away somewhere until we get a chance to pass it on to the bank. We can't very well hand it out to another customer for change, that is if we want to retain their good will."

"The only possible use it has is when some one purchases a 2-cent stamp and hands us a $2 bill in payment. Then we can get back at him by unloading all the $2 bills we have on hand."—Literary Digest.

The Mannekin

A few minutes away from the Grand place of Brussels—"nobles of medieval squares"—at the corner of the Rue de l'Eure and the Rue du Chene, stands the famous Mannekin fountain. This impudent rascal is a popular hero, everywhere known as the "oldest citizen of Brussels." Whenever visiting celebrities wish to please the Brusselsers, they present the Mannekin with a new suit of clothes. He has costumes of many nations—from a Napoleonic uniform to a gayly embroidered Japanese kimono—all of which are kept by the city for him to wear on special occasions. But whether naked as he was made, or decked out in an admiral's gold braid, he continues to fulfill his role of being the merriest fountain in Europe.

Holding a Husband

How to keep a husband, in nine chapters, is told by the California Federation of Women's Clubs. Here are the rules: Dress prettily for breakfast. Get your husband to take you out two evenings a week, but let him stay at home the rest. Pay the household bills before buying new dresses. Never make your husband dry dishes. Never permit your mother-in-law to visit on holidays. Listen to your husband if he likes the sound of his voice. Ask his advice on everything. Be clinging, but not too clinging. Make him think you're a weak, small creature and he is 9 feet tall with the strength of a lion.

Free for All

It was Freddie's first visit to the country. During a walk with his grandfather in the woods he kept looking round as if expecting to see some one.

"Why are you looking round?" asked the old gentleman.

"Where's the policeman?" asked Freddie.

"Policeman?" cried the other. "We have no policemen in the country, Freddie."

"The boy looked more puzzled than before."

"Then who keeps the people off the grass?" he answered.

Dens Can Have Other Uses

"So you insist on four windows in your den," asked the architect of the man for whom he was planning a home.

"Yes, it must have four windows," the man replied. "You see my wife likes a lot of light for her sewing."—Capper's Weekly.

Play Fair in Life

Other men are just as much deserving of a chance as you are. The road to success is not over others upon whom you have trampled. You cannot demand a "fair field and no favor" without extending the same privilege to others.—Grit.

No Place to Rest

If you will work hard until you reach the top, you need to work only twice as hard thereafter in order to stay there.—Lafayette Journal and Courier.

Night Coughing Quickly Relieved

Famous Prescription Gives Almost Instant Relief

Night coughs or coughs caused by a cold or by an irritated throat are usually due to conditions which ordinary medicines do not reach. But the very first swallow of Thoxine, a doctor's prescription, is guaranteed to give almost instant relief. Thoxine works on a different principle, it goes direct to the internal cause.

Thoxine is pleasant tasting and safe for the whole family. It will give you better and quicker relief for coughs or sore throat than anything you have ever tried or your money will be refunded. Put up ready for use in 35c, 60c and $1.00 bottles. Sold by Skauge Drug Co. and all other good drug stores.

"JUDY" By Winifred Van Duzer

JUDITH ARCHER, young school teacher, is aboard ship on a well-earned vacation. Her mother, whom she supports, meets a Mr. Tennant. Judy, realizing she is unattractive, is lonely. Her prejudice against men weakens when she receives attention from Kit Camp, ship's radio operator.

CHAPTER VIII.

BETSY ROWE'S stateroom was the tiniest on all the ship. And the darkest. It was tucked away at the corner of an inner tier of cabins and the steward used it as a catch-all for his brooms and dust mops on most voyages since even the most thrifty of vacationists usually refused it. But the room suited Betsy. "Got it for a song," she told Judy. "What do I care where I sleep? A live girl's never in her cabin unless she's asleep. Besides I had other uses for my nickels and dimes. Sit down, Ju—over there on the bed—till I show you."

There was nowhere to sit but on the bed. Clothes were scattered everywhere; the wash basin and the one chair were piled with powder boxes, rouge boxes, perfume bottles, brushes, combs—everything.

Betsy began to try things on. She would scoop up a lovely fragile gown from the floor, slide it over her head, go undulating like a manikin in the narrow space beside the bed.

"Like it, Ju? Cost a pretty penny I'm telling you. This ought to knock 'em for a row of painted totem poles!"

Frills, thin, wispy drapings; delicate silks. Pert little impractical sports things designed for anything but sports. Shoes which might have stepped from magazine ads. Frenchy, slanted hats.

Judy thrilled a little, envied a little. "Nothing suitable for a sea trip, Betsy. What in the world will you do if it storms?"

Betsy perched on the edge of the berth and swung long, unstocked legs in high-heeled green slippers and puffed smoke rings at the skylight.

"If it storms I'll be cuddled in some warm corner wrapping myself around a high-ball, dearie. Who cares for 'suitable' clothes? No girl ever caught a handsome man with 'suitable' clothes."

"Is that what you came for? To catch a man? I expect you're just being smart."

"You burn me up, Ju. A husband—the right one, I mean—man with looks and coin and all the trimmings—is what all of us want, isn't it? Why not be honest? No sense to mid-Victorian stuff. The coy and blushing maiden is out, old dear. She's as out as hoop skirts and men getting on their knees to propose."

"How do men propose these days?"

"Oh, they have their preferences. Some grab you by the neck while you're dancing and holler above the saxophones: 'What'dy say, baby? Shall we jazz the Lohengrin?'"

"Well, I think girls are the losers. Better drop it all—love and marriage—the whole business—than be treated like part of the evening entertainment. You're wrong, Betsy; every girl isn't stalking a husband. There are some left who don't go around using sex for a snare, thank goodness. Girls have learned that the feminine brain is equal to the very finest variety of male ditto and a lot of them are using that knowledge to their advantage."

airy panel was something out of a French fashion magazine.

But something was wrong. From the tips of the little silver slippers, Peggy brought out of reams of tissue paper, to the pearl and crystal necklet which lay very sweetly about her throat Judy was right. Above the necklet she was not.

"It's your hair, lamb. I've told you, and told you—"

Peggy's fingers began the old task of pulling, loosening, roughing. "There—do leave it. Perhaps you won't need your glasses tonight."

Judy would not give up the glasses. "I'm a school teacher, remember. Not a frivolous young thing."

"Couldn't you be a frivolous young thing? If you'd try."

"I'm afraid it's no use, Mother, but I will try to remember about my hair."

She did not remember, as it turned out. Almost before she had slipped into the velvet coat fashioned to complete the gown, the curls across her forehead had been tucked back. And by the time she had taken her place in the dining saloon the waves Peggy had so carefully laid across her ears were beginning to look sleek and constrained, because her restless fingers kept poking at them, smoothing them.

The coat bothered her, too. The wide sleeves with fur bands at the cuffs got in her way. She began to think that beautiful clothes were not her sort of garments.

Cap'n Charley, appearing this evening for the first time, gave them a ceremonious bow. "Running into rough weather," he belatedly. "Be off the Banks in a few hours. That's where old Bill Boreas and all his brothers lie in wait."

"The Banks?" Judy wanted to know.

"Banks of Newfoundland, my dear. Don't be alarmed if the foghorn sings all night. There's a saying that only fifty days a year are clear off the Banks."

But when he saw the bride clinging to her husband and the surprised looking London couple making alarmed movements, he hastened to add, "No danger. Eh, then, no danger at all." And he laughed in such a genial way that everybody glanced about to see who had been afraid, and the din at Betsy Rowe's table rose to a point where all the girls were shrieking and the men singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Later Judy refused politely but firmly to join that crowd, despite Betsy's noisy invitation and Peggy's secret urging.

She insisted on trailing Peggy to the music room where sedate passengers gathered for the Sunday night concert. She sat on a little divan in the half circle of a bow window and while Peggy listened happily to the round-faced orchestra leader, who looked like a portrait of Schubert, as he put his orchestra through a long program, Judy kept watching couples strolling on deck. Couples who drew into sheltered corners. Couples who drifted through the lounge toward the ballroom where they would dance after the orchestra had finished the concert.

Judy watched and was lonely. It was a new sensation, the wish to be like the girls who strolled with a male arm around their waists. With someone saying things that made them flush and laugh and look down.

Two-Dollar Bill Called "Just Darned Nuisance"

The idea that there is something unlucky about the $2 bill—so that many persons tear the corners off them to avert misfortune—occasionally arouses curiosity.

A number of our readers have written in with suggestions to account for the belief in the unluckiness of this particular note. One, however, a merchant in Pennsylvania, says from his experience as a retailer that "there is no question of superstition in connection with the $2 bill, it is just a darned nuisance."

"There is no compartment provided in our cash register for them," he writes, "and when we are handed one by a customer we have to secrete it away somewhere until we get a chance to pass it on to the bank. We can't very well hand it out to another customer for change, that is if we want to retain their good will."

"The only possible use it has is when some one purchases a 2-cent stamp and hands us a $2 bill in payment. Then we can get back at him by unloading all the $2 bills we have on hand."—Literary Digest.

The Mannekin

A few minutes away from the Grand place of Brussels—"noblesse of medieval squares"—at the corner of the Rue de l'Etape and the Rue du Chene, stands the famous Mannekin fountain. This impudent rascal is a popular hero, everywhere known as the "oldest citizen of Brussels." Whenever visiting celebrities wish to please the Brusselsers, they present the Mannekin with a new suit of clothes. He has costumes of many nations—from a Napoleonic uniform to a gayly embroidered Japanese kimono—all of which are kept by the city for him to wear on special occasions. But whether naked as he was made, or decked out in an admiral's gold braid, he continues to fulfill his role of being the merriest fountain in Europe.

Holding a Husband

How to keep a husband, in nine chapters, is told by the California Federation of Women's Clubs. Here are the rules: Dress prettily for breakfast. Get your husband to take you out two evenings a week, but let him stay at home the rest. Pay the household bills before buying new dresses. Never make your husband dry dishes. Never permit your mother-in-law to visit on holidays. Listen to your husband if he likes the sound of his voice. Ask his advice on everything. Be clinging, but not too clinging. Make him think you're a weak, small creature and he is 9 feet tall with the strength of a lion.

Free for All

It was Freddie's first visit to the country. During a walk with his grandfather in the woods he kept looking round as if expecting to see some one.

"Why are you looking round?" asked the old gentleman.

"Where's the policeman?" asked Freddie.

"Policeman?" cried the other. "We have no policemen in the country, Freddie."

The boy looked more puzzled than before.

"Then who keeps the people off the grass?" he answered.

Dens Can Have Other Uses

"So you insist on four windows in your den," asked the architect of the man for whom he was planning a home.

"Yes, it must have four windows," the man replied. "You see my wife likes a lot of light for her sewing."

Play Fair in Life

Other men are just as much deserving of a chance as you are. The road to success is not over others upon whom you have trampled. You cannot demand a "fair field and no favor" without extending the same privilege to others.—Grit.

No Place to Rest

If you will work hard until you reach the top, you need to work only twice as hard thereafter in order to stay there.—Lafayette Journal and Courier.

Night Coughing Quickly Relieved

Famous Prescription Gives Almost Instant Relief

Night coughs or coughs caused by a cold or by an irritated throat are usually due to conditions which ordinary medicines do not reach. But the very first swallow of Thoxine, a doctor's prescription, is guaranteed to give almost instant relief. Thoxine works on a different principle, it goes direct to the internal cause.

Thoxine is pleasant tasting and safe for the whole family. It will give you better and quicker relief for coughs or sore throat than anything you have ever tried or your money will be refunded. Put up ready for use in 35c, 60c and $1.00 bottles. Sold by Skaggs Drug Co. and all other good drug stores.
